Proposals By Nixon Are Expected Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon hopes to start sending "a significant legislative program" to Congress within several weeks, according to the President's newly named chief White House staff member.

The statement from Arthur F. Burns gave added substance to other indications that Nixon intends to present the Democratic 91st Congress with an ambitious legislative program as soon as possible, perhaps by March.

Burns, an economist and "longtime friend and trusted advisor" was named by Nixon Thursday as counselor to the President with cabinet rank, the only White House staff member with that status.

Burns, whose chief responsibility will be development of domestic policies and programs, said he already has submitted two reports to Nixon on potential legislative proposals or executive actions.

A decision yet to be reached is how and exactly when Nixon will make his legislative proposals. If the president decides on a special State of the Union message it probably will come within 30 or 40 days, Burns said.

The alternative would be a series of special messages.

The other indications that Nixon wants to get his proposals to Congress as soon as possible included his creation of nine special panels within the Council of Urban Affairs to submit recommendations on what he called "near term" issues requiring quick action.

In addition, Budget Director Robert P. Mayo has disclosed that the President will send to Congress recommended changes in the $195.3 billion budget submitted by former President Johnson.

Another likely proposal will be a recommendation for at least a partial dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity, the agency chiefly responsible for the War on Poverty.

Daniel P. Moynihan, Nixon's assistant for urban affairs, said "There clearly has arisen a predisposition in favor of locating in established departments those functions developed by the OEO which have proven successful."

Nixon has also advised the Senate that he is pulling back all the nominations made by President Johnson at the end of his term and still pending. These include two ambassadors, five judges, 141 postmasters and several other federal appointments.

Burns, a 64-year-old white-haired economist from Columbia University, had been something of a mystery since Nixon moved into the White House, at tending virtually every key meeting—until Thursday, a participant without a title.

After Nixon announced his appointment, Burns said the objective of his job "Is to maintain a continuous inventory of plans for legislative and executive action."

Alternatives to MMCAC Discussed at a Meeting

By RALPH JONES
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

There were more questions than answers in a meeting concerning Sedalia and Pettis County's future role in Mid-Missouri Community Action Corp., held in the Pettis County courtroom Friday morning.

The meeting was between state officials of the Office of Economic Opportunity, city and county officials and interested citizens, called to determine what course to take after the city and county announced some time ago they would leave the program as it is set up now.

All agreed that some parts of the program were desirable and would be maintained, but not under Mid-Missouri Community Action Corp., as set up now. These programs include the Summer Head Start program and the Neighborhood Youth Corps programs.

Invited guests were Dean Lupkey, director of the Regional OEO office in Kansas City, and Gordon Crowe and John Collins from the OEO offices in Jefferson City. They had been asked to meet with the Sedalia and Pettis County groups to explore the possibilities of retaining the two desirable programs after the city and county withdrew from MMCAC.

Lupkey explained there are three possibilities: stay in MMCAC, obtain single-program funding or merge with another CAC. Funding a single-phase program is legally possible for the county, Lupkey pointed out, but undesirable and highly unlikely to be approved.

City and county officials present at the meeting objected to remaining in MMCAC.

A merger, with the Missouri Valley Community Action Corp., appeared to be the most acceptable alternative, it was indicated. This CAC is made up of Saline, Chariton, Ray, Lafayette and Carol Counties. The addition of Pettis County would make it a six-county CAC.

Lupkey pointed out that mergers have been affected throughout the state, and that it is desirable, for administrative reasons, to have larger CAC units. He explained that funds already requested for MCCAC could be pro-rated with Pettis County's share going to MVCAC.

Judge Henry Lamm of the Pettis County Court presided over the meeting. Others attending included Ray Simon, Vern Masters and George Miller, city councilmen; William O. Hiatt, ex-officio board member and interested citizen; Dennis Onweiler, vice

Downed Medical 'Copter Makes a Total of 999

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today a medical evacuation helicopter was shot down in the central highlands killing seven and bringing the war's total of choppers lost in combat to 999.

The command also belatedly ennounced that a helicopter shot down Jan. 15 south of Da Nang killed Col. Michael M. Spark, 41, Alexandria, Va., commander of the 3rd Marine Division's 3rd Regiment. Six others, including a Marine officer, died with him in the flaming crash. Spark was the first Marine regimental commander killed in Vietnam.

The medical evacuation helicopter was downed Thursday in the central highlands 23 miles northwest of Pleiku. Three wounded Americans and four crewmen were killed. The command said it was clearly marked with red crosses.

In addition to the number of helicopters lost in combat, the U.S. Command said 1,316 others have been lost since Jan. 1, 1961, due to mechanical failure, enemy barrages that caught them on the ground and other causes.

Spokesman at Da Nang identified two others that died with Spark in the crash last week.

They were: Lt. Col. Ermil Lee Whisman, 39, commander of the 1st Battalion, 12 Marines, a native of Winchester, Ky., whose widow and four children live in Wichita Falls, Tex., and Sgt. Major Ted McClintock, 59, of the 3rd Marine Regiment, a native of Seattle, Wash., whose widow lives in Bothell, Wash.

A spokesman said Spark was in a command helicopter directing his troops battling enemy soldiers in heavily fortified position about 30 miles south of Da Nang. The helicopter was hit by small-arms fire, crashed and burned in the jungle.

Meanwhile, U.S. military analysts said from now until mid-February is a critical period in the Vietnam war because of the peace talks in Paris and the new administration in Washington.

These experts do not see any imminent threat to Saigon. Instead they anticipate enemy attacks on the three provinces along the Cambodian border northwest to northeast of the capital—Tay Ninh, Binh Long and Phuoc Long.

The analysts said intelligence reports indicate the Communist command plans to increase operations in an attempt to give the negotiators from Hanoi and the Viet Cong greater leverage in Paris and to put pressure on the Nixon administration while it is still shaking down.

An enemy winter-spring offensive has been anticipated since last Dec. 13, but the experts said they believe the U.S. and South Vietnamese operations that have smashed numerous bases and captured hundreds of tons of supplies have upset the Viet Cong's timetable.

Wally Makes It

With President Nixon looking on, Walter J. Hickel, center, was sworn in Friday as secretary of the interior in a ceremony at the White House. Chief Justice Earl Warren, right, administered the oath. Hickel was welcomed by Nixon with the declaration, "the last shall be first as far as this administration is concerned." Partially hidden behind Warren is Mrs. Hickel.

'Official' Viewpoint On Shots

MOSCOW (AP) — Cosmonaut Alexei Leonov today gave the first public eyewitness account of the shooting at the Kremlin that wounded two persons in a motorcade carrying the newest space heroes and Sovite leaders. He backed the official version that the leaders were not shot at.

Leonov told a news conference that an "unknown person took several shots" at the limousine Wednesday in which he was riding with three other cosmonauts—George Beregovoy, Valentina Nikolayev-Tereshkova and her husband, Andrian Nikolayev.

Only the lead car carrying the four new space heroes, who flew Soyuz 4 and Soyuz 5, was open, making it impossible to see with certainty who sat inside the others. The gunman could have thought he was firing at Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Nikolai V. Podgorny, who were actually further back in the procession.

Leonov addressed journalists at the news conference, devoted primarily to the latest Soviet space success.

Morning newspapers printed the account from the official news agency Tass under the small headline "Report." This was the Tass text:

"A provocation took place on Wednesday, when the pilot cosmonauts were welcomed in Moscow. Several shots were fired at the car in which the cosmonauts, Beregovoy, Nikolayeva-Tereshkova, Nikolayev and Leonov were driven.

"The driver of the car and a motorcycle driver who accompanied the motorcade were wounded. Not one of the cosmonauts was injured. The person who fired the shots was detained on the spot. The investigation is being conducted."

Informed sources said Cosmonaut Georgy Beregovoy, who piloted Soyuz 3 last October, was nicked by flying glass in the attack.

The Communist party newspaper carried the story at the bottom of page three, and almost all other papers also put it on the third page.

The Soviet government kept the attack quiet for 24 hours and only admitted it to foreign newsmen after word of it leaked out and they asked about it. A foreign ministry spokesman said the gunman was mentally deranged.

There was speculation that the young man wanted to shoot Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Nikolai V. Podgorny, but they were riding in a closed car several places behind the limousine which was hit.

It seemed clear that the gunman was not aiming at the parade's guests of honor, the four newest Soviet space heroes, who were standing in an open car two cars ahead of the vehicle which was hit.

Mental Torture By Red Captors Led to 'Confession,' Says Bucher

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — The captain of the Pueblo says he confessed to spying after blood-chilling mental torture, and then tried to drown himself in a bucket of water.

Tears streaming, his voice breaking with anguish, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher told a Navy court of inquiry Thursday that North Koreans finally broke him by threatening to shoot his crewmen one-by-one in front of him — and summoning the youngest sailor and saying they would start with him.

Bucher's account of the terror ended — at least for now — his public appearances. He goes before a closed session of the court today to give secret — classified — testimony, and will be followed, the Navy said, by Rear Adm. Frank L. Johnson, commander of U.S. Naval forces in Japan at the time the Pueblo was seized. Bucher has said he radioed desperately for help as North Korean gunboats surrounded the intelligence ship, but it never arrived.

The Navy said Johnson would testify after closed-door accounts from one or more of three captains under his command in Japan when the Pueblo was seized off North Korea last year. Summaries of all secret sessions will be prepared, deleting all classified information, and made available to newsmen, a Navy spokesman said.

Open court sessions are scheduled to resume Wednesday.

Clean Up in Mississippi After Killer Tornadoes

HAZLEHURST, Miss. (AP) — Massive clean-up operations began today in central Mississippi where tornadoes killed 29 persons as they carved a path of destruction across three counties.

The twisters, roaring in from the west Thursday morning, injured more than 150 persons and left approximately 300 homeless. Damage was estimated in the millions.

The first area struck was a predominantly Negro settlement just outside south Hazlehurst in Copiah County. The tornadoes then moved northeastward into rural areas of Simpson and Smith counties about 30 minutes later.

Utility crews worked into the night Thursday to restore most of the electrical and telephone service.

The Hazlehurst hospital alone treated 128 persons. Many others were taken to hospitals in Jackson and Brookhaven.

About 200 homeless persons spent the night at an emergency center set up at the National Guard armory in Hazelhurst.

Governmental and private agencies quickly moved into the area to care for the hungry and the homeless.

"We are ready to feed, clothe and shelter all of them," said George Sheffield, central Mississippi Red Cross disaster chairman.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture in Atlanta and the state Welfare Department in Jackson volunteered to provide food where needed. Gov. John Bell Williams, on a tour of the stricken area, pledged state aid.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., announced in Washington the Small Business Administration would make three per cent loans available to business and residential areas. Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., urged the government to declare the region a federal disaster area.

Survivors said an overwhelming roar and ominous darkness proceded the tornado.

"It sounded like a train to me," said Lonnie Haynie. "When the lights went off we got on the floor and I got on top of my youngest child. The house was flattened over us."

"I knew what it was when I heard it," his wife Vera said. "Then the roof came down around us. When I opened my eyes I saw it was going up the hill. I was afraid it was coming down and I made my children stay down. It looked just like

Lead By Students In March of Dimes

The 1969 March of Dimes campaign officially gets underway Saturday, according to James T. Buckley, county chairman. This year, spearheading the drive, will be the men of Theta Chi, a social fraternity from Central Missouri State College. These men, together with coeds, will canvass Sedalia homes Tuesday through Thursday evenings to raise $4,000 to go toward research, treatment, and eventual elimination of birth defects.

Buckley explained that in the past neighborhood volunteers had been called upon to conduct the "Mother's March." This year, the men of Theta Chi requested the opportunity to raise money for the Pettis County March of Dimes chapter so that they could receive recognition and credit in a national contest among fraternities for March of Dimes fund raising. Three Sedalians, Larry Dowdy, Tommy Hudson and Phil Rodewald, all members of Theta Chi, will act as the Pettis County chairmen for the project.

Latest statistics, according to Buckley, indicate that one of 16 live births result in a defective condition of some kind. Money raised from the campaign will be used to help provide care

Steam-Driven Vehicles Practical, Says Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixty years after it chugged off into oblivion, the steam-powered automobile may be tuning up for a comeback.

If the country gets really serious about licking air pollution, says Resources for the Future, Inc., it might take a look at modern-day versions of the Stanley Steamer, the White and the Locomobile.

From all standpoints of technoligy, "an acceptable steam powered automobile could be put on the roads in a very few years," said a special study published in RFF's annual report.

Electric autos also would help the smog problem, the report said, but would need "a decade or so" of development to become high performance vehicles matching gasoline-fueled internal combustion engines.

The steam car, by contrast, could quite rapidly be developed into a fully-powered, long range vehicle equivalent to today's ordinary motor cars in response, acceleration, power and fuel economy.

Unlike its ancestors of the early 1900s, the new steamer would have no heavy, dangerous boiler, could make a cold start in 30 seconds, and wouldn't have to stop every half-hour to take on water.

The absence of clutch or transmission would mean less cost, less weight, lower repair bills. And because the steam engine can give instant reverse acceleration, brakes would be needed only for parking.

And it would discharge virtually none of the contaminants which make autos and trucks the principal source of air pollution, according to the findings of Physicist Robert U. Ayres.

Under a grant from RFF to determine whether there are practically alternatives to the internal combustion engine, Ayres performed the research at Hudson Institute, Croton On Hudson, N.Y.

The study said that interest in the steam powered car has never died out, and in new hand-crafted models the most serious shortcomings of the old steamers are now ovecome.

Instead of a massive teaket-

Prayers Were Big Part Of Inauqural Ceremony

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Symbols of faith clothed the event—Bibles, vows, clergymen, bowed heads and prayer. It was the nation's crowning ritual, the inauguration of a president. And by tradition, it carries an aura of reverence.

"We recognize on this historic occasion that we are 'a nation under God'," evangelist Billy Graham said in an invocation at ceremonies installing President Richard M. Nixon. "This faith in God is our heritage and foundation."

It is an intangible element, unprescribed and unpromoted by official acts of a government which may neither establish nor hinder men's religion. Yet it is marked in many ways, in motto, pledge of allegiance and national anthem, and especially in high solemnities of state.

It "is the American ideal, born at the time of creation itself," said Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin of Los Angeles in an inaugural prayer. He said it began when God first infused humanity with its yearning for knowledge, goodness and freedom, and it shaped the birth of the United States.

As that country's new president took office, another clergyman, Orthodox Archbishop Iakovos of New York also prayed:

"We humbly beseech Thee, O Master of our destiny...endow him with holiness of purpose and with total commitment and dedication so that he may serve Thee and Thy will for men—...Grant him the power to overcome evil with good, injustice with justice, hatred with love-...war with peace."

Five clergymen, Protestant, Jewish, Orthodox and Catholic, offered prayers in the course of the inaugural proceedings. Altogether, the intercessions totalled about 2,000 words, interspersed throughout the event, equalling the inaugural address itself, which also was sprinkled with religious allusions.

"In these troubled times of global turmoil and unrest, our Father, we turn to Thee," prayed Bishop Charles Ewbank Tucker, an African Methodist Episcopal Zion churchman of Louisville, Ky. "Give to our nation a clear vision of the highest good and our leaders a clear judgment as to how the good may be obtained."

The President took his oath on two old family Bibles, one published in 1828 and the other in 1873, both opened to Isaiah 2:4, the great passage foreseeing a day when nations beat their weapons into constructive tools and make war no more.

In a benediction, Catholic Archbishop Terence J. Cooke of New York prayed that the nation would use its "blessed heritage to assure peace, equality and dignity for every person."

The Rev. Dr. Graham, a Baptist, voiced penitence that for "too long have we tried to solve our problems without reference to Thee. Too long have we tried to live by bread alone...Help us this day to turn from our sins...

"We pray, O God, that as we enter a new era, that we as a nation may experience a moral and spiritual restoration...O God, our new president needs Thee as no man ever needed Thee in leading a people...

"Give him supernatural wisdom, courage and strength for these years...Grant him an uncompromising courage to do what is morally right. Give him a cool head and warm heart. Give him compassion for those in...need."

Rabbi Magnin, tracing American aspirations back to the time of creation, said they originated when God said, " 'Let there be light' and there was light."

It was, he said, "the light that brought man out of the cave," endowed him with intelligence, morality, the impulse for freedom, the light that inspired the Old Testament prophets and sages and which was nurtured by America's founding fathers.

But "the night is long," he prayed, "and it is still dark as far as civilization goes. We will never be perfect, for man is not perfect; but we are on the way. Our country is still great, and it will be greater, with hope in our hearts, and work and rededication. There are a few faint streaks of pink in the sky...We await the dawn...Great God, our King. Amen."

A Joint Plea for More Unity Among Christians

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mingling now with relaxed familiarity Christians of many kinds and characteristics this week celebrated their burgeoning unity, praying for more of it.

"Beyond our ignorances, our prejudices. . .beyond intellectual and spiritual barriers, unite us, Lord Jesus," went a joint intercession prepared by Protestant, Orthodox and Roman Catholic representatives.

They also marked just how far they've come on that convergent course, and noted recent steps taken along it. These, while individually not spectacular of late, add up to considerable cumulative headway.

It was the annual observance of the "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity," Jan. 18-25, dating back more than a quarter century, but only since 1964 planned together by the three major groups.

It now involves common worship materials, and united services in many communities in this country and abroad.

Although some churchmen have voiced worries about a supposed slowdown or stalemate in the ecumenical movement, now that the romance of initial contacts has passed, many new, stronger ties quietly have occurred recently.

They've developed largely at grass-roots level, long the dormant sphere of the movement, but now astir in many localities with joint Protestant-Catholic study groups and action on such concerns as peace, poverty and racial parity.

Further strides also have come in official echelons. Among them:

—A swelling number, now nearing 40, of local councils of churches, formerly made up only of Protestant and Orthodox churches, now include Catholic churches or dioceses as members.

—In New York, the nation's largest city, the word "Protestant" was dropped from the name of the city's Council of Churches in a revised constitution, effective Jan. 1, opening the way for Catholic membership.

—State councils in New Mexico and Nevada now include Catholic dioceses, others are expected to become part of the Texas state council in February, and talks are going on about their joining in Minnesota and Louisiana.

—A new interreligious executive committee has been formed in this country by top officials of the National Council, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and the Synagogue Council of America for mutual consultation on strategy.

—A broad agreement reached by a joint Catholic-Anglican (Episcopalian) committee urged official acknowledgement that the two communions are "one in faith," with differences largely in terminology and methods.

Unity Services Disrupted

LONDON (AP) — Protestant extremists repeatedly interrupted a Christian unity service Wednesday night by shouting anti-Vatican slogans during a Roman Catholic cardinal's address to 4,000 persons in St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral.

Outside the cathedral, counter demonstrators pelted Northern Ireland's leading Protestant extremist, the Rev. Ian Paisley, with eggs and tomatoes.

One Irish Protestant, the Rev. Thomas Foster, was charged with "indecent behavior" under a century-old law forbidding interruption of a church service. He was one of a dozen demonstrators—most of them in clerical garb—who were ejected from the service held as part of the worldwide Week of Prayer for Christian Unity.

John Cardinal Heenan, head of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Britain, had just been welcomed to the cathedral by the archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, when Bible-waving extremists began shouting "No popery here!"

Ushers dashed from pew to pew, hustling demonstrators out of the church as they rose in sequence to rail against the Pope.

Cardinal Heenan, believed to be the first Roman Catholic cardinal ever to appear formally in the 17th century cathedral, won applause from many of his listeners when he said the demonstration showed "the need for the ecumenical movement."

Paisley stayed outside the cathedral and demonstrated with his supporters behind a ring of police guards.

"A great Protestant church is being desecrated by a Romanist," Paisley bellowed.

As the counterdemonstrators shouted "Paisley go home" and pelted him, he shouted: "The more of this the better. You see what kind of things papists do."

Paisley flew home to Belfast early today, his coat still stained with egg yolk and tomato.

Rome's Social Life Hazardous to Dress

ROME (AP) — The Italian Tailors' Assn. says sales of dinner jackets have dropped to an all-time low. They blame student demonstrators who have been throwing eggs at theater and opera openings to protest high living while workers are having a hard time feeding their families.

The tailors say many organizations no longer stipulate formal dress in an attempt to ward off trouble. As a result, the tailors say, one big group of laborers is being hurt—the workers in the clothing industry.

Cattlemen Criticize Taxations

HONOLULU, (AP) — The American National Cattlemen's Association ended a four-day convention here Thursday after passing several resolutions critical of federal tax practices.

The beef producers re-elected Bill House of Cedar Vale, Kan., as president for another year and voted to hold their 1971 convention in Los Angeles. They will meet next year in Washington, D.C.

The beef producers unanimously passed a resolution opposing a federal recommendation to change from cash accounting to an accrual system. The resolution said serious problems would result and charged that the recommendation would force more small farming operations out of business.

While condemning the use of farming as tax dodges by "a few persons," the cattlemen said these cases can be corrected under present law.

The resolution also criticized restrictions on the right of the farmers and ranchers to claim capital gains on the sale of their breeding stock, saying it would discriminate against livestock producers while allowing other businessmen to deduct losses in their operations.

Included among other resolutions were these calling for:

—Farm and ranch land to be assessed on productivity or earning capacity instead of sometimes "inflated" sales prices.

—A longer period to offset losses against past or future profits that would be "more nearly compatible with the price, production and climatic cycles affecting the livestock industry."

Given the Credit In Netting Robber

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Motel Manager Hans Aldershof was standing in line at a Bank of America branch Thursday when the man in front of him suddenly pulled a gun and held up the teller. As the man fled, Aldershof, 56, ran to the bank door and took down the license number of the man's car.

After giving the number to police, Aldershof went to his motel. There he found the car parked in front of one unit. He called police who arrested a man on bank robbery charges and his female companion on robbery charges. Police also found $3,700 in cash under a mattress.

The Hebrew name, David, means "beloved."

Pastor's Comment

By The Rev. James W. Kalthoff
Our Savior Lutheran Church

Last Monday, shortly after twelve noon, Richard Milhouse Nixon took the oath of office of President of the United States. A few blocks away from this scene a group of dissidents were burning U.S. flags and uttering obscenities toward the new president. Some were chanting songs of praise for Ho Chi Minh, the dictator of North Vietnam. Such disrespect of citizens toward our country and its highest official grinds at our very soul. This is not the Christian way.

The Apostle Paul lived in a day when the ruling government was hostile to Christianity. Christians were being torn apart by wild beasts in the arena in full sight of the ruling powers. Some were burned to the delight of the spectators. Most of the officials of that date were corrupt, and even some of the Caesars cared little for justice.

Yet, that Apostle to the Gentiles had the audacity to write to these same people who were being persecuted by the government: "Everyone must obey the state authorities; for no authority exists without God's permission . . . Whoever opposes the existing authority opposes what God has ordered . . . For this reason you must obey the authorities — not just because of God's wrath, but also as a matter of conscience . . . Pay them your personal and property taxes, and show respect and honor for them all." (Rom. 13:1,2,5,7)

Thus the Scriptures teach that Christians are to be good citizens and have respect for ruling authority.

One of the reasons the Son of God became man was because of man's sin against the authority established by God. While on this earth, Jesus obeyed the government and placed Himself under its laws. This He did for those who often break its laws. Jesus died to pay the penalty for our transgressions against God's "existing authority."

Through His power men can become the kind of citizens God wants them to be — citizens who respect authority, citizens who obey the law, citizens who pray for and cooperate with authority for the good of all. I firmly believe that Christianity has the prescription for an orderly, peaceful society — the power of the Risen Christ at work in the lives of men.

To Study Nigerian Relief

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today ordered a comprehensive and urgent review of U.S. relief efforts for starving people trapped in the Nigerian Civil war.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon "fully shares the deep humanitarian concerns expressed" by a resolution introduced in the Senate.

It urges Nixon to provide more food and other aid for the victims of the war. Fifty-two senators sponsored the resolution.

"He has requested a comprehensive review of relief efforts and urgent recommendations on what more can be done to expedite and enlarge relief of the suffering," Ziegler said.

The situation is a touchy foreign policy matter since the United States recognizes only Nigeria in the struggle with the secessionist region, Biafra.

Nixon went to work at 7:45 a.m. today attended the swearing-in of Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel, then conferred on economic matters with his counselor, Arthur F. Burns, and with Chairman Paul W. McCracken of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Ziegler fielded questions about the dock strike.

Asked about the longshoremen's walkout, Ziegler said "the secretary of labor and the administration hope that progress would be made in that area."

MoPac Gets Test Period For a Plan

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri Pacific Railroad today was granted state permission to inaugurate a one-year test of its proposed mobile freight agency plan.

The Public Service Commission told the road it could try the plan out at Pleasant Hill in western Missouri and in Bismarck in southeastern Missouri.

Traveling freight agents based at Pleasant Hill will handle shippers needs at Harrisonville, Archie, Adrian, Rich Hill and Butler. The agents from Bismarck will handle freight work at Middlebrook, Arcadia, Ironton, Annapolis and Piedmont.

If it works—the railroad saves money and the shippers get just as good service as they do now—the other nine proposed mobile agencies may be permitted, the PSC said.

The others include Jefferson City, Sedalia, Marshall, Webb City, Branson, Cape Girardeau, Charleston and second stations at both Bismarck and Pleasant Hill.

confessed, Bucher said Thursday, "sometime during the night I attempted to commit suicide by drowning myself in a bucket of water in my room but was unable to accomplish this."

"Mentally, I was quite disturbed," he said, partly because of the embarrassment he thought his confession caused the United States.

The typewritten confession said Bucher was a CIA agent, that his ship intruded into North Korean waters and that he was trying to put South Koreans ashore.

"And I realized," he said, "they (North Koreans) needed me alive more than anyone else in the crew for public appearances that I was afraid of and knew were coming."

The court warned Bucher Wednesday he may have violated regulations by surrendering the ship. Bucher was in his fourth day of testimony and has been unusually calm, sometimes tense, until he came to describing an interrogation before he confessed. As he talked he began trembling.

"They made me kneel on the floor," Bucher said. He said a North Korean he nicknamed Super Colonel, or "Super C," seemed desperate.

"'You have two minutes to decide to sign the confession or be shot,'" Bucher said he was told. "I spent two minutes on the floor and I repeated over and over... the skipper's voice broke and he paused, "I love you, Rose, I love you, Rose."

"At the end of the two minutes he asked me to sign," Bucher said. "I said I wouldn't. He told a guard at my side to move so when I got shot and the bullet passed through my head, he would not be hit."

"'Kill the son of a bitch!,'" Bucher said a North Korean shouted. "The gun clicked but it didn't fire. I had fully expected to be shot. But when the slide was drawn back, presumably to insert another bullet, I did not hear any bullet hit the floor and I damn well knew it was a game they were playing."

Two more minutes went by, Bucher said, and "the officer said, 'He's not worth a bullet,' and told me I would be beaten to death. Two guards beat me to the floor and kicked me and worked me over real good. I lost consciousness after a few minutes . . . I asked to go to the bathroom . . . all I could urinate was blood."

James C. Kirkpatrick, Missouri secretary of state and well-known Missouri newspaperman, will speak at the Jaycee Distinguished Service Awards banquet at 7 o'clock tonight in the Sacred Heart cafeteria. Tickets, at $2.50, will be sold at the door.

president of the Pettis County CAC board; Russell Carr, state employment office director; Harry Naugel, Pettis County board member and city representative on the area board; Jess Fairfax and Aaron Haller, Pettis County board members, and city representatives on the area board; Lamm, Zeb Thomas, Judge of the western district, E. L. (Red) Birdsong, judge of the eastern district, Mayor Ralph Walker, and local newsmen.

Poor administration of the MMCAC office and programs was given as the reasons for the city and county dropping out of the MMCAC.

Various alleged discrepancies in administration of the program were noted, and Lupkey said his office has a full report on these charges, but he had not himself studied the report. He indicated things of this nature should be handled by the area board, made up of members from Pettis, Benton, Johnson and Morgan Counties.

Lupkey indicated his office will only make recommendations, not give orders, to the area board.

Another complaint of the local group was lack of proper represnetation in the conduct of the program. Judge Lamm pointed out that even though Pettis County has a majority of population in MMCAC, representation on the area board is the same as smaller counties. Others voiced their objections to this.

"In other words," Haller pointed out, "we have no control over our local programs."

Fairfax pointed out that under the local board system, during the first two years of operation here, certified teachers were available for the Head Start program. Now, he added teachers do not have to be certified. In fact, during the summer some of the office employees have filled in as teachers, he said.

Naugel said he has information that the other three counties in MMCAC will vote Monday night on a plan to eliminate Pettis County from MMCAC. A question as to whether or not this is possible was brought up. Lupkey did not give a direct answer, but indicated the three counties could vote to merge with another CAC, leaving Pettis County alone.

Several of those present sought direct answers to what would happen if the county is left alone. Lupkey again outlined the merger possibility as the most desirable route to take, but admitted that legally the Head Start and NYC programs could be funded separately in Pettis County.

Hiatt directed a question to Lupkey: "If we were left alone, I believe it would be your duty to see that we were brought under the 'umbrella' of EOE in the Head Stard and NYC programs. "Do you agree?"

Lupkey replied this is so, and that he would be required to do so.

So far a decision on what route to take has not been forthcoming. City, county and joint meetings will have to be held, the city council and county court will have to vote, applications for a merger will have to be made and other avenues discussed and explored before the final move is made.

Bucher Tells of Ordeal As Prisoner of Koreans

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — From his lonely prison room in North Korea, U.S. Navy Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher could hear little girls laughing.

Children went by outside singing a marching song.

Things were improving. A few days before, on March 5, 1968, Bucher and his 81 men from the USS Pueblo had been moved to the prison in the countryside.

It was six or seven miles from Pyongyang, the capital of North Korea, Bucher told a court of inquiry Thursday. The court of five admirals is investigating capture of his intelligence ship.

At this new prison there were no blinds on the windows, and Bucher said he could see cooperative farms surrounded by military installations and missile batteries.

"We were treated much more humanely," Bucher said, comparing this prison to the compound where he and his men were taken when they were captured three months before. At that compound, Bucher said, he and his men had suffered severe beatings and Bucher underwent chilling mental torture.

"There was always an aura of terror," he said. But now the men had daily sick call except for Saturdays and when doctors were not available.

"Nurses were always available and their professional qualifications were comparable to the nurses at home. But not their looks. Their looks didn't quite come up to standards," Bucher said with a grin.

"I'm sure I came close to death on a couple of occasions because of illnesses. There was typhoid, and scurvy was rampant from a lack of vitamins. Mysterious holes started appearing in our skin.

"There were the types of sores you see in the Bible in pictures of Lot. By and large I thought their medical treatment, considering all things, was barely adequate. In some cases, though, it was just short of miraculous.

"They did have penicillin. But their sterilization and cleanliness standards were far below those at home.

"I'm sure that because of this several of us contacted hepatitis. I was one of those.

"At one time I had lost approximately 100 pounds."

Bucher said he was given a half a pack of cigarettes every day and he and his men were getting tooth brushes and tooth paste.

The men got to write home—but interpreters translated the letters into Korean and they were changed by officers in charge of the captivity, Bucher said.

Then, he said, the men got their letters back and were ordered to recopy them, adding the North Korean changes.

The North Koreans tried to propagandize his men with socialistic movies every Friday night and booklets and brochures about the "tremendous number of atrocities by American troops during the Korean war.

"They gave us absolutely ridiculous accounts of the war and the way things were in the world," Bucher said. "They gave us news in a way that tried only to demoralize us.

"They told us Robert Kennedy had been killed by the President of the United States."

Hijacking Made Easy With Card

MIAMI (AP) — Pilots of planes likely to detour to Cuba have been given bilingual cards of what to say when the hijacker comes.

The cards include eight numbered phrases—in English on one side and Spanish on the other. A note to the pilot instructs him to circle the Spanish phrase with the number corresponding to the English he is trying to convey.

"This is to prevent misunderstanding of the pilot's actions by a Spanish-speaking hijacker," said a spokesman for Eastern Air Lines, one of several issuing the cards. "If he doesn't get the message some hijacker might do something he doesn't want to do."

National and Delta Airlines also have issued the cards.

The cards also inform the pilot he will routinely receive landing instructions from Havana Air Traffic Control.

The card texts:

1. Proceeding to Cuba as directed.
2. I must open my flight bag for maps.
3. Not enough fuel to reach Cuba.
4. The weather will not permit landing in Cuba.
5. The aircraft is too heavy for landing, we must circle to burn fuel.
6. Traffic control has instructed us to circle — hours-minutes.
7. Aircraft has mechanical problem—can't make Cuba.
8. Emergency — must land nearest airport.

Steam

tle-type boiler it would have a monotube steam generator containing only a small amount of water. Water consumption might amount to a gallon every thousand miles.

There would be no starter motor, carburetor or fuel injection, no engine-block cooling system, no distributor, no muffler, no elaborate air pollution control system and only one spark plug.

The savings would more than offset the extra weight of the steam or vapor generator and its controls, Ayres skid.

Any hydrocarbon distillate would serve as fuel. Continuous combuston at low pressure would result in more complete burning and, even without controls, far fewer air pollutants. There would be no stringent requirements for octane ratings or need for adding tetraethyl lead—and thus no blowing into the atmosphere of vast quantities of fine lead particles hazardous to health.

Ann Landers

Same Advice For Cheated Husband

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest the letter from the woman who stumbled over two very close relatives in the backyard — her husband and her sister. They were locked in loving embrace and the time was 5:00 a.m.

Your advice was "forgive and forget — and then forget what you forgave." Neat phrasing, Ann, but easier said than done. And now I am writing to ask, what should a husband do when he stumbles over his wife and his boss, in his very own living room — asleep, the both of them, on the sofa at 3:00 a.m.?

True, I was not expected until the following day, but it's a fine How-Have-You-Been when a man can't go home without warning his wife in advance so she can clear the guy out.

Our marriage was a good one, or so I thought. We have three terrific kids — one in prep school and two in college. My wife doesn't want a divorce and neither do I. She claims Mr. X drove her home from a party and came in for a nightcap and they had too many.

My wife forgave me for a little affair three years ago and now she says it's my turn to be noble and compassionate. Somehow I think a man is entitled to an occasional indiscretion but a wife should live by a different set of rules. Maybe I'm old-fashioned but this is the way I see it. Please back me up. Thanks. — SHAFTED

Dear Shaf: Thanks for what? You are looking for support for a weak argument and you've rattled the wrong cage, Bub. My advice to the cuckolded husband is the same advice I give to the wife who has been cheated on — forgive and forget, then be big enough to forget what you forgave.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my husband and I went to a movie. It was not advertised as an adults-only film but it should have been.

Five minutes after the movie started, a couple came in with two children. The little girl was about 10 and the boy was no older than seven. The parents sat in the middle and the children sat on either side. The boy was seated next to me.

About halfway through the picture the little fellow's head fell on my shoulder. The poor kid had fallen asleep and I wasn't surprised. It was eleven o'clock. I didn't have the heart to wake him up so I just let him sleep.

What's the matter with parents who drag their kids to night movies — and in the middle of the week at that? There should be a law against it. Please say something in your column to let the imbeciles know it's wrong to do this to children. — OUTRAGED

Dear Out: I agree wholeheartedly. Here's your letter and I hope the imbeciles see it.

Hickel Gets Confirmed, But is 'Served Notice'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has easily won its first congressional test, gaining confirmation of Walter J. Hickel as secretary of interior over the opposition of nearly all the Senate Democratic leadership.

But indications were that Democrats in Congress will be watching the Alaska governor's every move after he is sworn in at the White House ceremonies today.

"Mr. Hickel is on notice from both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue," said Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield after Hickel was confirmed Thursday by a vote of 73 to 16.

"It will probably mean he will be a very good secretary of the interior," Mansfield added.

Mansfield, paired against confirmation, said the vote has no significance for the future and "we're very hopeful relations will be good."

Hickel, whose views on conservation and water pollution had stirred a storm of controversy, was the last of Nixon's 12 Cabinet appointees to be approved. The others were sworn in Wednesday.

Also confirmed Thursday was multimillionaire California industrialist David R. Packard as deputy secretary of defense.

The vote was 82 to 1. Tennessee Democrat Albert Gore, declaring the nomination constitutes "a conflict of interest as plain as the nose on your face," cast the single "nay."

Packard's $500-million stock holdings in an electronics company he helped begin raised the conflict-of-interest questions. His company has done substantial business with the Defense Department, so Packard plans to put the stock in a trust from which he will derive no income or profit.

Dividends and any increase in the stock's value will go to charity and education, but he can reclaim it when he leaves government service.

All 16 dissenting votes on the Hickel nomination were cast by Democrats. All Republicans either voted for the Alaska governor or stated support of him.

The dissenters included such luminaries as Edward M. Kennedy, the party whip; Fred R. Harris, the chairman of the National Democratic Committee and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and Eugene J. McCarthy, possible 1972 presidential candidates.

Several lesser appointees won quick approval, but the Senate Armed Services Committee put off action until next week on nominations of John H. Chafee as secretary of the Navy and Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr. as secretary of the Air Force.

Its ranking Republican, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, accused the Nixon administration of "a serious error" in not asking the Senate reconfirm Stanley R. Resor, who is remaining as secretary of the Army.

Lawmaker Will Draft a Bill On College Aid for the Poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal for a "civilian GI bill" to enable needy students to attend college will be introduced in the 91st Congress.

Rep. Ogden R. Reid, R-N.Y., said he would draft the new legislation, which would implement a report by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

"Any qualified student ought to have the chance for a higher education, including masters and doctors degrees if he decides to pursue them," Red said in an interview.

The report, released last Dec. 12, contains 22 recommendations, including a massive program of direct grants to needy students, with federal matching grants, student loans, work study programs and doctoral fellowships. Extensive aid for medical training also is included.

Although the report is viewed favorably by most congressmen, the chances of formal enactment this year are almost nonexistent.

A key member of the House Subcommittee on Education, Rep. Albert Quie, R-Minn., said, "I doubt if we're going to do anything about higher education this year."

In an interview before he took office, Robert Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, said he had talked about it with President Nixon, "but not in any depth."

He said some of the reports may be forged into administration proposals. "I'm generally in favor of the emphasis on medical and dental schools," Finch said, although he added, "Probably the areas of real concern are for elementary and second schools."

Reid himself said, "I realize that the effort at the elementary level has to be improved if we are going to maximize the opportunity at the upper levels of higher education. Still, I hope the education and labor committee will act soon on higher education."

The Carnegie proposal has received generally enthusiastic support in academic circles.

Douglas Knight, president of Duke University at Durham, N.C., said, "I don't think it means that everyone will be going to college 10 years from now, or that the commission intended it that way. But it strikes me as a guarantee of an opportunity. I think it's something this country needs."

Dr. Charles C. Turner, director of the United Board for College Development in Atlanta, a fund-raising arm of private Negro colleges, called the report encouraging and said, "it seems to us the most salient feature, the most innovative, is in the area of student loans and supplementary grants to institutions for operational purposes. This is where nothing significant has been done before and where Negro colleges are facing hardships and at the same time are unable to raise tuition."

One dissenting note to the Carnegie proposal came from Russell I. Thackery, executive director of the National Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities.

Thackery contends that direct grants to students will tend to drive tuition fees upward, while institutional grants would enable colleges and universities to improve facilities and to expand to handle a greater inflow of students.

Students Raise Money To Keep School Open

NEW LENOX, Ill. (AI) — In an age of student revolts, a band of hardy pupils has succeeded in raising enough noney to keep their high school operating for at least three more years.

The 557 pupils at a Roman Catholic high school in New Lenox, a town of 2,400 in northern Illinois, have raised nearly $30,000 in cash and pledged all the money is still rolling in.

Providence High School was about to be closed because of a huge budget deficit and a shortage of teachers before the pupils and their parents went to work.

Now the school is assured of staying in operation for at least three to five years.

Bishop Romeo Oblanchette of the Joliet Roman Catholic Diocese has announced that the effort had paid off and that the school will remain open.

"I decided that the pastoral aspects were such as to swing the balance, and the financial problem and lack of perso nnel could be solved if put to the challenge of the people," the bishop said.

Jean Clemens, 18, editor of the high school newspaper, was crestfallen as the school's board of directors voted to close the school last week—but then the bishop's letter was opened and read, decreeing that the school would remain open.

"I just stood there and thought, 'This is the end,'" she said. "But I thought a miracle might happen, and I guess you might say it did."

The miracle was helped along with some old-fashioned elbow grease in a pupil-power effort to wipe our Providence's 1968-69 school year deficit of $90,000.

They sponsored a New Year's Eve dance. The pupils also worked up a style show and a dinner dance. Money came in from car washing and a spaghetti dinner.

The mothers began running the school cafeteria to save wages normally paid to cooks and waitresses and dishwashers.

The fathers organized to contact persons for pledges. Unsolicited donations rolled in, many of them from persons who were not Catholics. Some contributions were as much as $1,000.

An Associated Press dispatch which was displayed across the country brought donations from Walnut Creek, Calif., to Oshkosh, Wis., to South Orange, N.J., to Fairmount, Tenn.

"We hear so much nowadays about students trying to demolish their schools, and the efforts of Providence High were most refreshing and encouraging," wrote a woman from Walnut Creek, Calif., along with her donation.

Insurance Agent's Life Has Lighter Side, Too

NEW YORK (AP) — As every veteran bartender, doctor, lawyer, newspaperman and minister knows, sooner or later almost anything can happen to anybody.

Insurance claims adjustors, too, in time become familiar with the quirks of chance and the vagaries of human behavior. One of these, R. J. Bartum, claims vice president of State Farm Mutual and a man with a fine eye for the ridiculous and the unusual, collects as a hobby some of the odd cases his firm has been called upon to settle.

Here are a few:

A Midwestern client summoned police after he smashed into a telephone pole. They immediately arrested him for a drunken driving.

Denying the charge, he asked for a drunkometer test. When the drunkometer failed to work, the man said, "I'm an electronics engineer, I'll fix it."

He did, then took the test—and flunked.

———

After whooping it up in a Michigan tavern, a bunch of Indians on their way back to the reservation attacked a passing pickup trucks with rocks and beer bottles. The driver veered into a telephone pole.

He collected, but the insurance company couldn't, it found, collect from the wayward braves. Their tribe had never signed a full peace treaty with the United States; therefore they couldn't be sued.

———

An Illinois man reported he'd just been in a collision with a bathtub.

"Yes, sir," replied the unruffled claims agent, and asked how he had managed the unusual feat of colliding with a bathtub.

It turned out the bathtub had fallen from a truck on the highway.

———

Then there was the case of the man who one moment was relaxing chin deep in a warm bath and the next moment found himself, stark naked, sitting on his garage roof.

His hot water heater had exploded. Part of his house was demolished; he was unscathed.

———

Animals figure in a number of cases:

A 78-year-old woman reported that, while peacefully watering her lawn, she had been attacked and scratched by a surly rabbit.

In Arizona a man collected after he was dive-bombed by a near-sighted desert hawk who snapped the aerial from his moving car and flew off through the sky with it—apparently believing he had caught a snake.

After his car had been stolen, a client had to rent a new one. He retrieved his old car a few days later. The thief crashed into him after running a stop sign.

A lady denied vehemently that she had been in an accident or had failed to pay a number of parking fines.

Investigation proved her right. The guilty party had been driving around with his license plates upside down.

His number was 660-898. Hers was 868-099.

Construction Estimates Are Revised

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Col. R. L. Anderson Jr. today revised upward to $31 million the construction work in the Kansas City Corps of Engineering district during 1969.

Earlier this month a corps estimate was that $30 million in work was in store for this year.

Construction items of about $1 million have since been included in the presidential budget.

The corps' estimate was that the year's construction now will break down to $19 million in civil works and about $12 million in military construction.

Anderson told the Associated General Contractors of Missouri that the Kansas City District now has a backlog of authorized projects with a value approaching $750 million which have not been started. He said about $250 million is in the Grand River basin where five reservoirs and channel improvement are planned. Another $250 million is in the Missouri River levee system project.

There is another $100 million in the Kansas River basi which includes projects like Grove on Soldier Creek, Onaga on Vermillion Creek, and Clinton on the Wakarusa River the corps spokesman said. There is another $40 million on the Little Blue River near Kansas City involving two reservoirs, Blue Springs and Longview, and about 15 miles of channel improvement.

Heart Ball Called Off

The Youth for Heart Ball, scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 25, in the Agricultural Building of the Fair Grounds, has been cancelled. Illness in the schools and lack of ticket sales were the reasons given by a spokesman for Mrs. Barbara Howe, dance chairman.

Rho Tau chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha had sponsored the affair.

The Russians 'Think Big,' At Expense of Mere Man

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet superlatives are running into a law of diminishing returns.

The Russian people are ambitious and prestige-conscious. They like to think and build on a grand scale. But the lure of sheer size has run into pitfalls on several projects recently.

Russian history is full of examples of official efforts to impress people, especially foreigners, with showcase projects. The Soviets have carried on the tradition, sometimes with greater enthusiasm than their prerevolutionary ancestors.

A new 4,000-room hotel in Moscow, the modernistic Rossiya, is so huge that tourists are constantly getting lost in it. A reporter who showed up there for a late-night appointment found his host's room empty: He descended to the lobby on the opposite side of the hotel—a 20-minute walk, one-way—and came right back. By the time he returned to the room the man was asleep.

A restaurant built into the Ostankino television tower, to provide a panoramic view of Moscow, often finds itself in the clouds. It makes for eerie dining, but likely no view, day or night, from the 1,100-foot level.

The AN22 turboprop plane, first made public in Paris in June 1965, was designed to carry 724 persons. The prototype was billed as the world's largest, but the plane never has appeared for passenger or cargo use.

The AN22 apparently was a descendant of the Maxim Gorky, an eight-engine monster built in 1933 and advertised then as the biggest in the world. It blew up in flight, killing everybody aboard.

Moscow itself was laid out by men with big ideas. The Garden Ring street circling the business district is so wide in some places it can be crossed only in two cycles of the stoplight.

Intourist, the travel agency that handles foreigners, is quick to remind visitors of various Soviet firsts, bests and mosts.

One tourist who had his fill of superlatives remarked recently on a pebble beach on the Black Sea:

"Everything is big in the Soviet Union — Even the sand."

Always on the Ball

This being National Jaycee Week, it is an appropriate occasion to give our local chapter some of the recognition it well deserves.

A look at the record of civic accomplishments in Sedalia over the past few years provides ample evidence that the Jaycees are living up to their club's national purpose — individual development through community service.

It's a rare community project that hasn't had full Jaycee support, and in many instances the club has been the primary force for progress.

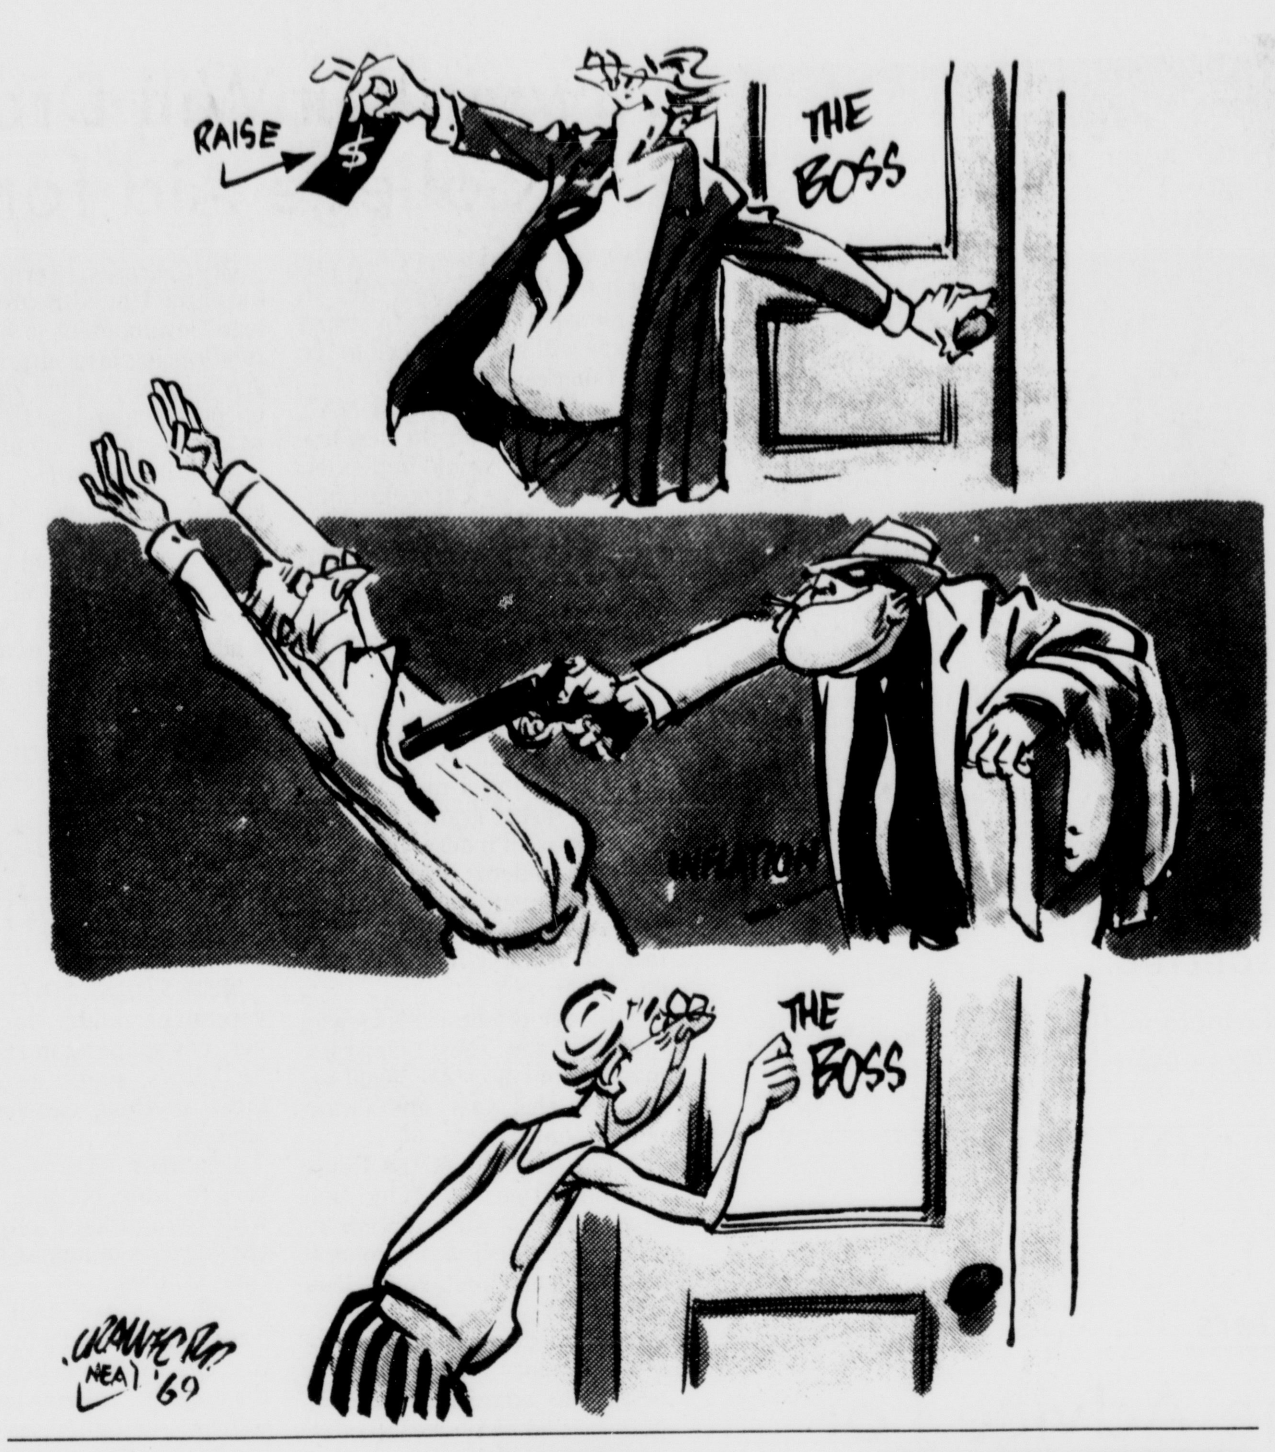
For instance, the Jaycees must be given the lion's share of the credit for the fact that State Fair Community College became a reality here last year. The club obtained the necessary petitions to bring the issue to a vote and continued to promote its passage when the going got rough.

One of the most ambitious achievements of the club in recent years was the oral polio vaccine drive in Pettis County. Thanks to the Jaycees, more than 25,000 Pettis Countians received the vaccine, and an "extra" $10,000 the club rounded up for the project was turned over to the city for various community betterment uses. The proof of the success of the program is the fact that there hasn't been a single case of polio in the county since.

Most recently, Jaycee hands have been seen in the successful passage of the city charter proposition. Whether Sedalia eventually becomes a charter city or not will be up to the people, but the very fact that this progressive project is under way at all is a result of hard work by our local chapter.

In addition, the club has always given full support to all worthwhile civic projects and has been in the vanguard of promoting civic and industrial bond issues.

Civic responsibility is a commodity we often take for granted. The record of the Sedalia Jaycees should serve to remind us, during this, their week, that our city is fortunate in having so much of it in one organization.



BETTY CANARY

That First Plane Ride

I try to be gentle with my children. And when I find myself leaning the other way, I just think of them as parents-to-be. Thinking this way for a half-hour isn't so bad because all I do then is give them 15 cents each and send them down to the drugstore. An hour of this kind of thinking and usually I have to lie down.

I'm not implying I'm caught in the generation gap. Actually, it's more like being caught between two speeding trains. But, when I try to explain to them the problems of being a parent today, well, the kind of reaction I get is like the one from my son Stu. He folded his arms over his chest and said, "Tell me, mother of many winters, how it was in the early days of our people."

The reaction I get from my husband at a time like this is, "For Lord's sake, Betty, stop slapping at him that way!"

It all started because Stu wants, for his 13th birthday, a plane ticket.

We agreed that a plane trip would be a nice gift (it sure beats shopping for all those kits at the hobby store) and I wrote a letter to his aunt Ruth. She, in turn, agreed to meet him, take him to dinner and then see that he got on the flight home.

Stu seemed rather complacent about the whole thing and I remarked that he should be excited. After all, I nagged, if the prospect of his first plane ride wasn't thrilling, then why did he want to go.

"Well," he explained patiently, "it seems ridiculous that here I am, almost 13, and I've never ridden on a jet."

Today, of course, I board a plane with aplomb and my tapestry cosmetics case. However, it wasn't always that way. After several pointed remarks about my son's attitude, I told him about my very first plane ride.

I was in the third grade and had begged for weeks for the ride after seeing a poster announcing there would be rides for $1 each at our county fair. I agreed to go without souvenirs, give up the ferris wheel and the merry-go-round, have nothing to eat (and I also promised my parents I'd do without new shoes for a year and forget about the Easter bunny, although they didn't hold me to this) because all I wanted was to ride five minutes in that marvelous airplane.

Truthfully, I remember nothing about the flight because I was sick the entire five minutes and no doubt the pilot, poor thing, remembers me still. However, I stood in front of my class at school and told enormous lies about my ride, saying, among other things, that I had seen five states. This would have been truly wonderful if it had been true because we were at an altitude of some 1,000 feet.

"You see," I said to Stu, "this is what I mean when I try to explain about the things that have happened just in one generation. From Lindbergh to Apollo 8 in such a few years. . . ."

"When," he asked, "do you think TWA will be putting rockets into operation?"

Venereal Disease May Pass to Infant

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — What are the symptoms of veneral disease? Can it be passed from a mother to her baby?

A — Gonorrhea starts with a severe burning pain on urination starting five or six days after an exposure. This is associated with a discharge of pus from the urethra. These symptoms are more likely to occur in men than in women. But in women, the uterine tubes may become infected, causing pain and often sterility.

Syphilis starts with a small hard tumor or chancre on the genitals which develops from 10 to 90 days after exposure. Because it is painless it may go unnoticed, especially in women. About four weeks later there may be a skin rash that resembles measles.

A mother who has gonorrhea may, at the time of delivery, pass the infection to the baby's eyes. This was a common cause of blindness in the past and is why all states require prophylactic treatment of the eyes of every newborn. A mother with untreated syphilis may transmit the disease to her baby by way of the blood passing through the umbilical cord.

Q — What complications in men are caused by gonorrhea?

A — In addition to the inflammation of the urethra, gonorrhea may cause prostatitis, arthritis and, less frequently, inflammation of the kidneys.

Q — If a person who was exposed to veneral disease had two negative blood tests in the following five years, could he possibly have syphilis?

A — Although false negative tests do occur, they are rare with improved methods of testing. When there is reason to doubt the results of a blood test one of the new modifications of the test should be used.

Q — Are niter and saltpeter the same? How effective are they in reducing sexual desire?

A — Niter and saltpeter are other names for potassium nitrate. Its value in reducing sexual desire has been greatly overrated and it is no longer prescribed for this or any other prupose. Vigorous exercise and a cold shower are still the best means of cooling your ardor.

Q — I am taking Regroton. It gives me a headache. Could the headache be caused by prolonged use of this drug?

A — Yes. Other side effects include nausea, diarrhea and muscle cramps.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Nixon Invited HHH to Deliver Speech

DREW PEARSON and JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon, minutes before he took the oath to become president of the United States, was in the White House paying a courtesy call on President Johnson before the two drove to the Capitol together. Vice President Humphrey, minutes before he was to leave office, stood nearby.

"How about delivering my speech for me, Hubert?" asked Mr. Nixon.

"How long is it?" asked the Vice President.

"It's exactly 2,025 words and it takes about 20 minutes to deliver," replied Mr. Nixon.

Vice President Humphrey pretended to study the matter. "I think it'll take longer than that," he said.

"Mr. President," he finally concluded, "it was my intention to deliver that speech, but you got in the way."

— Two Good Sports —

The public didn't realize it, but two men who stood beside Richard Nixon when he took the oath as president must have said inwardly: "There but for the grace of God might stand I."

One was Chief Justice Earl Warren, who administered the oath. The other was Vice President Hubert Humphrey, whom Nixon defeated.

No one ever would have suspected from the firm voice of the Chief Justice as he gave the oath that the man who repeated it after him had once done his best to euchre Warren out of the presidency.

The two leading contenders in 1952 were Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, running neck and neck and both arriving at Chicago with about the same number of delegates.

Warren, then a very popular governor of California, had run for vice president on the Dewey ticket in 1948. He had served his party faithfully, and was in an excellent position to be a compromise candidate in case of a continuing deadlock between Taft and Eisenhower.

This was the strategy when the Warren special train left California. Delegates were all sworn to support the Governor until he released them, and almost all were confident of victory.

However, there was one young senator who flew out to meet the train in Denver, and who, riding the balance of the way to Chicago, began to spread discord. He was Richard Nixon. He also had sworn to support Warren until released, but despite that fact he began to talk up the idea of supporting Eisenhower. Warren, he whispered, could not be nominated.

Nixon's man, Murray Chotiner, and Eisenhower-bannered buses met the Warren train when it arrived in Chicago. Warren supporters ripped off the banners, but it was obvious that forces from within were working against the Governor. Nixon continued to work against him — in return for the promise that he, Nixon, would be Eisenhower's vice presidential running mate.

Eventually he succeeded. Eisenhower and Nixon were nominated and elected. Warren went back to California, defeated.

— HHH was Crushed —

Chief Justice Warren has a long memory. But in the tradition of American good sportsmanship, he gave no inkling of his thoughts as he administered the oath to President Nixon.

Nor did Hubert Humphrey, as he stood beside Nixon, give any inkling of his disappointment. Hubert's close friends say that he was crushed and heartbroken over his defeat. If President Johnson had come out for him earlier; if the political polls had not made it so difficult for him to raise money; if the Democratic Convention had not been held in Chicago — probably he could have won.

All these ifs come back to haunt him during the sleepless hours after election. They must have haunted him as he stood at the Capitol watching Richard Nixon become the 37th President of the United States.

— LBJ Keeps Gear —

The Air Force is maintaining an embarrassed silence about the whole matter, but it has been unable to retrieve the costly navigational, communications and safety equipment that has been installed at the LBJ Ranch at the Taxpayers' expense.

Several weeks ago, the Air Force delicately sounded out the White House about returning the special equipment that Lyndon Johnson used during his presidency. The word came back that LBJ had no intention of returning the government equipment on his ranch.

The discussions were strictly verbal between Air Force officials and White House aides. The latter contended that the LBJ landing strip would continue to be used for "official" flights after Johnson left the White House.

The alibi for keeping the communications equipment was that President Nixon might want to get in touch quickly with his predecessor on occasion. The taxpayers' gear will enable Nixon to reach LBJ almost instantaneously whether he is down on the south pasture or speeding over the Texas hills in his white Lincoln Continental.

— Merry-Go-Round —

The governors of the 50 states said they got much better treatment from the Republicans during the inaugural parade than previously from the Democrats. They rode down Pennsylvania Avenue together near the forefront of the parade rather than straggling along, some of them toward the end...J. Willard Marriott, the GOP inaugural boss, took pains to see that each governor had an aide from his home state. Gov. William Guy of North Dakota found himself with Col. George Watkins of Carrington, N.D., as his military aide. Mrs. Watkins comes from Velva, N.D., where Eric Sevareid was born. The Governor's driver was Staff Sgt. P.F. Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The George Suter Plumbing and Heating Co., located for 52 years at 210 East Second street, has moved to a new location on the northwest corner of Sixth street and Ohio avenue. Since the death of Mr. Suter the business has been carried on by Mrs. Suter and her daughter, Mrs. R.C. Lippard, the latter manager for the past two years.

FORTY YEARS AGO

James F. McAninch was elected president of the Pettis National Farm Loan Association. W.L. Brown was chosen vice-president; M.D. Norton, secretary-treasurer; and John M. Sneed and G. Daniels, directors.

NINETY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Boonville railroad bridge just completed has been fully tested. Five engines coupled together were run across it several times, their combined weight being placed alternately on each span. The result was satisfactory in the extreme, the deflection under the heavy weight being scarcely worthy of record.

Guest Editorial

BOSTON RECORD AMERICAN: Minority Presidents. — Because he received less than half of the popular votes cast, Richard M. Nixon entered the White House as a socalled "Minority President." This is a handicap since it means the incoming Chief Executive was given no clear-cut mandate for action.

Practically, this is true. Yet we are indebted to Hugh D. Adair for pointing out that the term "Minority President" is something of a misnomer for describing the situation. In a larger sense, all of our recent Presidents could be so described.

Mr. Adair, an official of the American Legion in San Antonio, Texas, writes:

"We hear some snide remarks about a 'Minority President,' but who wasn't? In the last nine elections less than 59 percent of those eligible voted in two of them; over 59 percent voted in four of them, and an even 59 percent voted in two including the last one.

"Roughly speaking this means only a little over 30 percent of the eligible voters of this country elected our last nine Presidents. Doesn't that make all of them 'Minority Presidents'?"

The answer, of course, is yes. And it is a shameful answer which reflects no credit on far too many citizens. Almost 50 million failed to vote last Nov. 5 although privileged to do so.

Shorts in Living Color

Now the well-dressed man can be fashionable all the way down to the skin. A maker of men's unmentionables is introducing a line of shorts, T-shirts and athletic shirts in eight high-fashion colors.

The fact that the public doesn't know what goes on underneath the Italian silk is no excuse for underwear that is dull, lifeless and unromantic, urges the company's marketing manager. A man's underwear can now reflect his personality, he says. Fire Red, for example, should be perfect for dynamic, aggressive types.

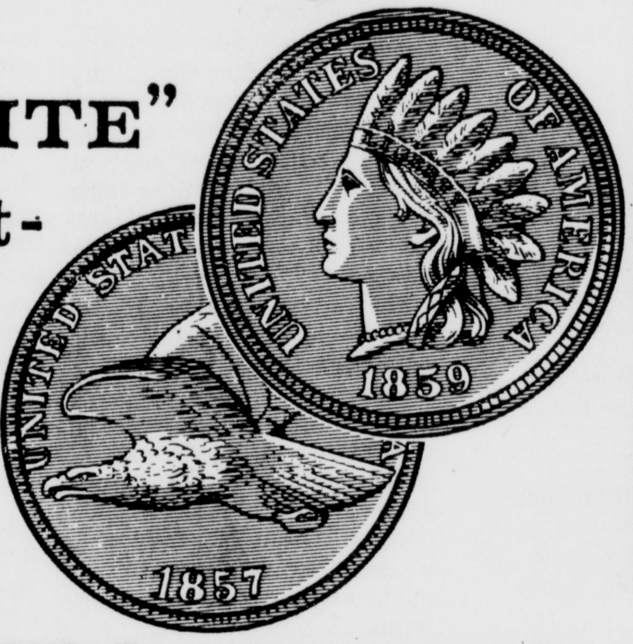
There is also a Blush Pink, which must either be for shy fellows or those who have experienced suspender failure sometime in their lives.

MONEY CLIPS

NEA

by Mort Reed

The "WHITE" Cent-



TO MONEY CLIPS: We have several old coins left to us by our grandparents and among them are some white Indian-head pennies. Are they any more valuable than the thinner coins made of copper?—Carl Wile (Waco Times Herald).

MR. WILE: The composition of the first Indian-head cents was the same as that of the Flying Eagle cent—88 per cent copper and 12 per cent nickel. The excessive amount of nickel gave the coin a lighter complexion. In 1864 the alloy was changed to 95 per cent copper and five per cent nickel.

Jim Kelly's column, Trends of Today's U.S. Coin Values, a weekly feature in Coin World, lists the white cents as follows: The 1859 in good, very good, fine, very fine and extra fine condition: $2.75, $4, $6, $10.50 and $20. The same coin in uncirculated condition should realize up to $35.

The 1861 Indian-head "white" cent is valued slightly higher by Kelly because of its low mintage figure of 10.1 million.

MR. REED: Will you please tell me the value of a $2.50 gold piece in perfect condition? It is a 1910 Indian head. Also a 1908 $5 gold piece in the same condition and an 1892 Columbian Exposition half dollar. — Mrs. J. O. Whyler (Akron Beacon Journal).

MRS. WHYLER: Here again I refer to Kelly's column. It is the most reliable source for last-minute averages available. Kelly's values can be depended upon. He shows the $2.50 (Quarter Eagle) in extremely fine condition to be worth approximately $30, and the $5 (Half Eagle) at about $35.

The Official Black Book of United States Coinage shows the 1892 Columbian Half Dollar between $2.50 and $3.50. Uncirculated specimens are worth around $5.

DEAR MR. REED: I am writing for information about an Indian-head cent dated 900. The date must be an error in stamping as it is in very good condition and should be dated 1900, but the figure 1 has been omitted.—Mrs. S. Levandoshe, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. (Times Leader Evening News).

MRS. LEVANDOSHE: This is an unusual coin indeed. The figure 1 was blanked by a filled die, which means the cavity intended to impress that number on the coin blank was accidently filled with a foreign object and failed to make an impression

DEAR SIR: Can you tell me through your column in our paper, how much Indian-head pennies are worth? I have one 1863 and one 1896 in fairly good condition.—Mrs. Orlo Homewood, West Union, Iowa (Cedar Rapids Gazette).

MRS. HOMEWOOD: I assume you mean average circulated condition when you say fairly good. If the word Liberty can be read on the headband, it is in very good to fine condition and your 1863 coin is worth approximately $2 to $3. The 1896 is not worth quite as much. About $1.

What would you bid with the South hand after East opens the bidding with a diamond?

We are pretty sure most South players in the continent-wide Charity Game decided to gamble with a four-spade call. We approve heartily of this bid. South can't tell what is going to show up in dummy but most of the time there will be enough help so that there will be a good play for the game.

South is mighty disappointed when he sees the dummy and will wish that he had restrained his impulses. Then if he plays the hand in workmanlike fashion the gods of chance will come to his aid and he will make his contract.

It doesn't require great genius. South takes his ace of diamonds and starts trumps and drops the queen and jack so that there are no-trump losers. He runs off a couple more trumps just to see if anyone will discard a club but no one is going to oblige.

Then he has to lead a club. He plays his deuce and covers West's three spot with dummy's six or seven.

East is in with the nine and probably leads a diamond. Not that it matters as long as he doesn't underlead his heart ace.

South ruffs and plays a second club. West plays the jack or queen and it is up to South to make the winning play. With no adverse bidding South would figure to go wrong but South has heard East open the bidding. East's play of the king of diamonds at trick one sort of marked West with the queen. East almost surely needs the ace of clubs for his opening bid. Therefore the correct play is a second low club from dummy and it is well rewarded. East has to play his ace!

Ex-Aide to King is Ray Defense

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A top aide to slain civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has paid a jail cell visit to James Earl Ray, King's accused killer, and says he will aid in Ray's defense. The move was backed by the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, King's successor as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"Brother Ray has asked me to defend him and I intend to do it," the Rev. James Bevel told a meeting of about 50 ministers Thursday night after his jail visit. Bevel said last week he was convinced Ray was innocent in the slaying of King here last April 4.

In Atlanta, Abernathy said he viewed Bevel's action as a way of moving "nonviolence into a new dimension in American life." The SCLC head added, "Rev. Bevel is speaking to the real issue—namely that it is not who killed Dr. King, but what killed him."

Bevel visited with Ray in the top-security cell on the third floor of the Shelby County Jail, accompanied by Ray's attorney, Percy Foreman of Houston, Tex.

Sheriff William N. Morris Jr. said Bevel and Foreman were with Ray for one hour. Later Bevel discussed the case in general terms with the ministers who had been attending the general board meeting here of the National Council of Churches.

Bevel said he was convinced of Ray's innocence before he met with him "and I am now even more convinced that Ray was about as capable of killing King as I am of flying to the moon."

In answer to a question, the bearded, balding Bevel said he had been accepted by Ray to assist in the case and that Foreman would remain as chief counsel. Bevel, 32, is not a member of the bar but says he is a lawyer "by circumstances."

Foreman was not available for comment on what part Bevel would play in the case.

At the meeting here, Bevel declared, "We are going to defend Ray. But we're not going to find out who's guilty. You'll say 'Who did it?' You go find out—you're a cop. I'm a prophet."

During the session Bevel lashed out at nearly everyone connected with the Ray trial, the ministers and Negroes and whites in general.

"America is going to have a good lynching party—the judges and the preachers," he said. "Black folks are so intent on revenge that they are going to sleep through a lynching of a deranged man. White folks are going to stand by."

Mr. Chips Back On The Screen

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Next Thanksgiving, the nation's theater screens will be offering a $9-million, musical "Goodbye, Mr. Chips." The release will come exactly five years after the project was initiated by its producer, Arthur P. Jacobs.

The story of how Jacobs finally managed to get the new "Chips" on film demonstrates the tenacity and patience that film makers need in today's ever-changing market.

"It was Thanksgiving week of 1964 when I decided to do 'Chips' as a musical," said the ambitious young publicist-turned-producer. "I had just been toying with the idea for some time, and I found out that Andre Previn had been thinking about it, too. We worked up a lot of enthusiasm for the idea, and then I suddenly realized, 'We're certainly talking big when neither of us owns the property.' "

Jacobs took his idea to MGM, which did own "Chips," having filmed the memorable 1939 version with Robert Donat and Greer Garson. The company's executives were enthused about Jacobs' idea and agreed to go along with him. The producer assigned British playwright Terence Rattigan ("Separate Tables") to write the script.

"We made some changes in the story," said Jacobs. "The book and the first film ended in a contemporary time, and so does our version--it concludes in 1970. Hence we cover World War II instead of World War I. In the book and film, Mrs. Chips was a very brief figure. Chips met her on a holiday, married her, and she died in childbirth; there was no detail of her background.

"In our script she is established as a musical comedy star of the London stage. This gives her dimension and also provides an excuse for musical numbers. Our picture is not a musical in the usual sense; the characters never sing to each other. Many of the songs are 'voice-over'—done with off-screen voices without the characters moving their lips."

The casting of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" proved to be a three-year headache. The first Chips was Rex Harrison, but he had to withdraw because of a conflicting schedule for "Dr. Dolittle," also produced by Jacobs.

Next, Richard Burton was to costar with Samantha Eggar, Gower Champion directing. But Burton's tax lawyers raised so many problems he was dropped.

Jacobs then signed Peter O'Toole, who had sung on the London stage though never in films. The producer cast Petula Clark as Mrs. Chips after viewing her tests for "Finian's Rainbow."

Proposed Levy By Cities Is Favored By Tax Group

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' proposal to give cities authority to levy a half cent sales tax is a practical means for the cities to obtain additional revenue, the executive director of the Missouri Public Expenditures Survey said today.

Director Edward Staples said the state apparently will be hard pressed to raise taxes to finance its commitments in mental health, welfare, education and other fields.

He said to expect the legislature to increase state taxes still further to provide additional revenue to the cities would not be realistic.

Staples said a study published by the survey last year showed a growing number of states have answered their cities' requests for more revenue by granting local authority to impose sales taxes.

The study noted that early in 1968 the Missouri Highway Commission dropped a requirement that cities pay part of right-of-way costs for urban highways. The Highway Department estimated this action will save Missouri's two largest cities, St. Louis and Kansas City, $32 million over the next five years.

A few years ago the state assumed costs of city-financed mental health treatment centers in St. Louis and Kansas City, amounting at that time to $1 million a year. As a result of increased services provided by these institutions, they now cost the state $9 million a year, according to the study.

Staples said a municipal sales tax would be a productive source of revenue.

He said in cities that are retail centers or offer attractions to visitors, purchases made by non-residents deriving benefits from a city help pay for the services it provides.

Concentration of business and industry in a city would add to the yield of a sales tax, he said, since they are large purchasers of taxable supplies and equipment.

Staples said the governor's plan would allow the state to collect the tax for cities along with the state sales tax. Duplication would be avoided and retailers would not be burdened with two collection procedures.

He said studies in other states show a city sales tax would not cause an appreciable loss of retail business over municipal boundaries. Few customers would shop elsewhere just to avoid a half cent tax.

Staples said the need for expenditures and the wishes of taxpayers are given more consideration by local officials when local taxing authority is given them.

He said foreseeable demands for money at many government levels—from an already heavily taxed public—call for the most efficient use of tax sources.

He said it is more likely that locally authorized taxes would be imposed only when needed and with more moderation than if state taxes were increased and the additional revenue distributed.

Nominations By LBJ Withdrawn By Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has withdrawn 155 nominations—including two ambassadors, five judges and dozens of postmasters—submitted to the Senate by Lyndon Johnson in the last days of his administration.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon wants a chance to review them all case-by-case "without prejudice."

"There is a possibility," Ziegler said, "some will be renominated."

The nominees for ambassador are Robert W. Komer, former head of the Vietnam pacification program, whom Johnson named envoy to Turkey, and Albert W. Sherer Jr., a career foreign service officer who had been slated to go to Equatorial Guinea.

The five judges had been named to U.S. district courts in California, Washington, D.C., and Guam.

Ziegler was quick to point out that President Kennedy had withdrawn 1,243 Eisenhower postmaster nominations when he took office. But Ziegler said he did not know how many nominations had been submitted or subsequently reinstated.

The action also affected three men Johnson had named to the Law Enforcement Assistance Agency, created last year to help local police in the fight against crime. They are administrator Patrick V. Murphy, former director of public safety in the nation's capital, and associate administrators Ralph G. H. Siu of Hawaii and Wesley A. Pomeroy of California.

Johnson's longtime Texas friend and congressional liaison aide in the White House, Harold Barefoot Sanders Jr. was among new federal judges involved. He had been named to the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

Other judgeships withdrawn: David G. Bress for the District of Columbia; William M. Byrne Jr. and Cecil F. Poole of California, to serve the central and northern Districts of California, respectively; and James P. Alger of Utah for the District Court of Guam.

Electoral College Reforms Are Not Likely, Says Advocate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading Senate backer of electoral reform sees little chance of Congress agreeing soon on a change in the Electoral College system of choosing presidents.

And another senator predicts that even if Congress does decide on change, small states will kill any proposed Constitutional amendment out of fear of losing influence to bigger states with their major urban areas.

Indiana Democrat Birch Bayh, chairman of a Senate judiciary subcommittee on electoral reform, said Thursday proposals for changing the system to direct popular elections, such as he has sponsored, stand the best chance in the Senate.

"But," he added, "I think the biggest chance is for not getting anything."

Bayh commented as his subcommittee opened hearings on numerous proposals to abolish the Electoral College. The subcommittee today called Dr. Lloyd Bailey, of Rocky Mount, N.C., a Republican elector who broke his pledge to cast his Electoral College ballot for Richard Nixon and voted instead for George C. Wallace.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., told the subcommittee needed election reforms likely would be killed by small states fearing a loss of influence if Congress sends them a proposed constitutional amendment for the direct vote which he supports, in part.

Dominick said the electoral College gives small states some balance with populous ones and they are not likely to ratify a popular vote system that would give even more influence to cities.

"Certain of those cities now are, or have been in the past, controlled by city bosses who pledge to deliver the vote for candidates of their choice," he said.

Dominick is a co-sponsor of two Electoral College revision bills, one to apportion its vote according to the popular vote and the other to base its votes on the popular results in each congressional district.

Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said the days are over when the public needed intermediaries in elections because it was poorly educated and lacked access to information.

Word on Birth Control Spread By an Elephant

RATANGARH, India (AP) — At a time when elephants in the United States are the symbolic center of attention, a 25-year-old female pachyderm has begun a life-long walk through India's often inaccessible villages to spread the message of family planning.

This elephant, strictly nonpolitical, made her debut before 500 excited residents of this rural community 100 miles northeast of New Delhi.

Purchased for $780 by 60 private individuals who donated $13 each, the elephant is to walk about 20 miles and visit five villages a day, dispensing contraceptives via its trunk at government-subsidized prices — less than one cent for three contraceptives—and distributing handbills and literature urging the various birth control methods.

Her name is Lal Tikon, meaning Red Triangle, the symbol of the government's family planning program which is seeking by various means to slow down the increase in the country's population—now estimated at 530 million and increasing by 30,000 a day.

Although she has about 60 years of walking left, no one expects Lal Tikon to visit all of India's 560,000 villages in her lifetime.

Instead, her owners hope she will demonstrate a new and economical communications medium for family planning.

One of the walk's organizers explained that many villagers have no access to the radios or newspapers that are used extensively to publicize the family planning program.

As Lal Tikon enters a village, she will be recognized easily. A huge inverted red triangle is painted on her forehead.

On her flanks are two bright red and yellow cloth signs, one bearing the four faces of a happy Indian family and the other a triangle with the message "Lal Tikon Mera Nax. Khushi Batna Mera Kax." It means "My name is Lal Tikon. My job is to spread happiness.'

The elephant walk is a nongovernmental affair, and its organizers have insisted on personal anonymity. Many, however, work for the Ford Foundation and the U. S. Agency for International Development.

Lal Tikon has had a favorable effect on the village of Ratangarh. Since her arrival a week ago, five persons have volunteered for sterilization operations—three more than were performed in the last two years.

Wildcats Claw Princeton Tigers To 71-54 Victory

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dave Moser was named Davidson's most valuable player last season and he hasn't been doing too badly the past few days, either.

Last Saturday, the 6-foot-1 senior from Fort Wayne, Ind., fired a last-second basket that shot Davidson past stubborn VMI 66-64.

And Thursday night, he scored eight of the points as the fourth-ranked Wildcats ran off 11 straight early in the second half and clawed the Princeton Tigers 71-54.

The red-haired Moser averaged only 8.6 points a game last season but won his MVP award with strong defense and ballhandling. Coach Lefty Driesell calls his captain "one of the smartest backcourt men in college basketball."

Driesell was pretty smart himself, plucking 6-5 senior Mike O'Neill off the bench to start in place of the injured Jerry Kroll, Davidson's No. 2 scorer. O'Neill limited Princeton's top scorer, Jeff Petrie, to eight points, all in the first half, while netting 22 himself.

"Princeton didn't play up to its capabilities and neither did we, I guess, Driesell said. "But with Doug Cook playing with a bad ankle, we did pretty well considering, I guess."

It was Davidson's 13th win in 14 starts. Princeton, led by Chris Thomforde's 20 points, is 8-6, but has lost to four of the top 11 teams in the nation in this week's Associated Press poll.

In fact, Gordon L. Wise, an assistant professor of marketing at Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio, puts out an analysis of schedules and rates Princeton's as the second toughest nationally.

"Look at the teams they have lost to," Driesell said. "They're so much better than their record that it's difficult to describe."

Davidson was the only ranked team in action Thursday but things pick up tonight when top-ranked UCLA faces Northwestern in part of a Chicago Stadium doubleheader. The other half pairs 16th-ranked Marquette against Chicago Loyola. Ohio State, No. 12, faces Cornell at Cleveland.

Elsewhere Thursday night, Drake moved to win a game of first-place Tulsa in the Missouri Valley Conference with a 93-76 rout of Bradley.

Arizona took over the lead in the Western Athletic Conference by downing Brigham Young 76-70 while Arizona State stopped Utah 93-88. The losers had been tied for the lead.

Georgia Tech walloped Rice 75-56 as Rich Yunkus scored 25 points and grabbed 17 rebounds. Oklahoma City, coming on strong since 6-8 Willie Watson became eligible, crushed Abilene Christian 104-83 as Rich Travis, the nation's No. 6 scorer, popped in 27 points and Watson added 19.

Vermont beat Yankee Conference rival Connecticut for the first time in 10 years 99-87 as Bob Hutton scored 23 points, Frank Martiniuk 22 and Dave Lapointe 20.

Seattle walloped Weber State 100-62 and Idaho whipped Wasington 66-53.

Other major scores included Baylor 103, Tarleton State 57; Florida State 92, Hawaii 60; Clemson 95, Furman 82; Northeastern 68, Massachusetts 64. Fairmont State of West Virginia, the nation's new No. 1 small college team, rolled over Salem 104-64 for a 14-0 record.

Joe Is Talking About Retiring

NEW YORK (AP)—Only Joe Namath could top Joe Namath when it comes to startling the pro football world, and Broadway Joe has in mind quite an encore for his Super Bowl triumph with the New York Jets.

Namath, pro football wonder boy at the tender age of 25, is talking about retiring. Don't laugh. Remember Sandy Koufax and Jimmy Brown?

Although he is the sport's No. 1 star with a bushel full of money and maybe more Super Bowls ahead of him, he listed some pretty good reasons for getting out now, while he still is on top.

"The legs are the main problem," he said, reaffirming a simple off-hand comment Wednesday that he is considering the possibility of retiring.

And there have been several very attractive business and entertainment offers that followed his direction of the Jets to their stunning Super Bowl upset over the Baltimore Colts that made him the most attractive personality in sports.

Namath's retiring thoughts put a damper on any celebration Weeb Ewbank might have considered after signing a new contract earlier Thursday as coach and general manager of the Jets. There had been some speculation that the 61-year-old mentor might give up the coaching reigns, but that would have been nothing compared to any idea that Namath might retire.

Brown, Cleveland's great running back, shocked the sports world by retiring before the 1966 season for a movie career. Koufax, baseball's superstar, after pitching Los Angeles to the pennant in 1966, retired because of a painful elbow ailment.

"You have to make it while you're on top before you get destroyed," said Namath, who has been bothered by knee trouble in both legs since his college days at Alabama. He has undergone three operations on them and still plays in pain.

"It's been a long season and with rest they might be better," Namath said. "But the way I feel now, retirement is something that has to be considered.

He denied that retirement talk might be a means toward getting a better contract from the Jets. "If I can't play, I can't play. I'll just be physically not capable. The doctor will have to decide that," he said.

One thing that Namath will consider is his teammates.

"There would be a sense of letting them down if I quit," he explained.

Namath said he already has told Ewbank that he is considering retiring.

Red Wings Tie With Boston

By THE ASSOCIATE D PRESS

The National Hockey League's All-Star Game was played three days ago but the stars haven't stopped shining.

Detroit's Frank Mahovlich, who scored two goals in the mid-season classic, came right back with a pair Thursday night as the Red Wings battled Boston to a 2-2 tie.

Bernie Parent of Philadelphia, the only goalie to play a full period of shutout hockey in the All-Star Game, kicked out 36 shots and led Philadelphia to a 2-2 standoff with Chicago.

Claude Larose, who scored the West Division's tying goal in the final three minuts of the All-Star Game, tallied Minnesota's first in a 3-1 victory over Pittsburgh.

In other Thursday night action, New York dropped Los Angeles 3-1, Oakland stunned Montreal 5-3 and Toronto shaded St. Louis 3-2.

Mahovlich's 28th and 29th goals of the season balanced a pair by Ken Hodge of the Bruins and gave Detroit the standoff which extended hot streaks for both clubs.

The Bruins, unbeaten in 12 games, zoomed into a five-point lead over Montreal in the East Division. Detroit, which has lost only one of the last 10, is locked in a three-way tie for fourth place with New York and Chicago.

Parent was brilliant against the Black Hawks as Philadelphia battled Chicago to a tie. The Flyer goals by Dick Sarrazin and Guy Gendron came 16 seconds apart in the second period with Gilles Marotte serving five-minute major penalty.

The Hawks were two men short for the first one with Bobby Hull also in the box. Doug Mohns and Howie Young scored for Chicago.

Larose's long slap shot got the North Stars off in front of Pittsburgh and Minnesota, playing its first game under returning Coach Wren Blair, ended a 14-game winless streak at the expense of the Penguins.

After the game, the teams swapped defensemen with Duane Rupp going to Pittsburgh and Leo Boivin to Minnesota.

The Rangers were also successful with a returning coach as Emile Francis stepped in for ailing Bernie Geoffrion. Rod Gilbert scored a pair of goals and Vic Hadfield assisted on all three New York tallies in the victory over the Kings.

Montreal jumped off to a 2-0 lead against Oakland but the Seals battled back to tie the score at 3-3 and then beat the Canadiens on late goals by Bob Dillabough and Gerry Ehman.

Dillabough stole pass from Henri Richard with just over five minutes remaining and broke in alone to beat goalie Rogatien Vachon. Then Ehman hit an empty net for the wrap-up goal.

Ron Ellis had a pair of goals leading Toronto past St. Louis and ending five-game unbeaten streak for the West Division-leading Blues.

S-C Eighth Grade Defeats Marshall

Sedalia's Eighth Grade "A" team defeated Marshall 37-25 Thursday. High scorer for Sedalia was Robertson with 10. Marshall's high scorer was Lynch who also scored 10.

The Eighth Grade will see action again January 30 when they play Knob Noster here. Their record now stands 3 and 2.

In the Eighth Grade "B" game, Sedalia went down to defeat 29-27 in a close battle. High for Sedalia was Gray with 12 while Fenwick tallied 9 for Marshall.

Individual scoring: Sedalia — Robertson, 10; Butler, 8; Lovean, 8; Arnold, 4; Anderson, 4; Schroder, 3; Marshall — Lynch, 10; Blalock, 8; Hammer, 5; Dametz, 2.

Big Eight News In a Bombshell

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nebraska invades Iowa State Saturday afternoon with a chance to climb back into the Big Eight basketball race, but the biggest news of the week in the conference came Thursday in a bombshell dropped at Stillwater, Okla.

Oklahoma State University announced that sophomore star Amos Thomas is being declared ineligible for the remainder of the season, depriving Coach Henry Iba and the Cowboys of the Big Eight's No. 5 scorer.

The 6-foot-7 yearling from Oklahoma City, the school said, is being dropped because he played last spring in a benefit game in Oklahoma City in violation of Big Eight and National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

OSU said it had asked the Big Eight to investigate Thomas' participation in the game, a benefit for Dunjee High School's athletic program, and that the conference had prepared a report.

"Based on this information ... it has been determined that the participation in this game is a violation of NCAA and conference rules," the OSU disclosure said. "Consequently, the university is declaring Thomas ineligible for the remainder of the basketball season."

Thomas' future eligibility, the school said, would be appealed to the Big Eight and NCAA.

Iba, whose Cowboys are off to a lackluster 1-2 start in the conference race, could not be reached Thursday night for comment. There is little doubt, however, that the loss of Thomas will seriously cripple any hopes OSU retained of contending for the Big Eight title. He was averaging 17.7 points and 7.7 rebounds a game in conference play.

Thomas was picked to the first all-tournament team in the Big Eight pre-season tournament last month in Kansas City.

OSU, which plays at Nebraska Monday night, has an 8-6 season record.

Big Eight Commissioner Wayne Duke said Thursday night it will be determined at the regular conference meeting Feb. 28-March 1 in Kansas City whether the Cowboys will be forced to forfeit any of their victories.

Duke said he had been asked to investigate the matter and had done so, conferring both with Thomas and Iba in the process.

NCAA and Big Eight rules explicitly state that athletes shall not participate in any outside competition of any form, aside from regularly scheduled games of the institution they represent, Duke said.

Nebraska, 0-2 in the Big Eight, must avoid another loss or place itself in serious jeopardy in the race. The Cornhuskers have not played since Jan. 7, when they lost 95-72 at Kansas State.

Iowa State scuttled Oklahoma State's hopes for a good start in league play, dumping the Cowboys, 58-56, at Ames Monday night. The Cyclones also knocked off Kansas at Ames earlier.

"If we expect to stay in the Big Eight race, this is a real important game for us," Husker Coach Joe Cipriano said. "They Cyclones have proven they're a fine team by beating Kansas and Oklahoma State. So we know what a tough assignment we'll have."

New Candlestick Park

Candlestick Park, home of the San Francisco Giants, may look like this in 1970 if a $9.1-million facelifting approved by the Board of Supervisors is carried out. The expanded stadium would provide 64,000 seats for football, left, and 62,000 for baseball. A new section, extending from the end zone, right, to the far left, would help harness the wind which now whips into the open arena. For football, 7,000 movable seats would front the new section.

Win on Board, Also at Bank

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Penn State came out of the year end football bowls the big winner, both on the scoreboard and at the bank.

As an independent university it keeps all of its share of about $330,000 from the Orange Bowl where the Nittany Lions defeated Kansas 15-14. Kansas must whack up its $330,000 with the Big Eight conference, a rule that applies in one form or another for all the other conferences.

No exact figures are ever announced on the Rose Bowl, the biggest and richest of them all, but with a sellout crowd of 102,063 and a rich television contract, the Big Ten and the Pacific-8 are each reputed to get around $1 million.

The Big Ten divides its share up 11 ways, two parts going to the team that played, and one to each other conference member. This amounts to about $100,000 per share. The Pacific-8 divides its portion equally among the eight conference schools. In the Rose Bowl, Ohib State dumped Southern California and O.J. Simpson 27-16.

In the Gator Bowl, each team received about $190,000 but Missouri, the winner over Alabama 35-10, must share its prize with others in the Big Eight and Alabama must split with members of the Southeastern Conference, with Alabama keeping $115,000.

In the Bluebonnet, where Southern Methodist took a squeaker from Oklahoma 28-27, the team shares were the biggest ever, about $192,000 with SMU keeping $100,000 and sharing the rest with Southwest Conference teams. Oklahoma's Big Eight counterparts were also cut in. The previous record was $160,000 each to Texas and Mississippi in 1967.

The Sugar Bowl was a rich one. Here Arkansas beat Georgia 16-2 and each reportedly got $250,000. Georgia kept $115,000, with the balance split among Southeastern Conference teams, while Arkansas kept $100,000 and split the rest with the Southwest Conference.

The Cotton Bowl also was lucrative. Texas and Tennessee each received about $300,000. Texas kept $100,000 and divided the balance into eight shares, with seven going to Southwest Conference members and the eighth to Texas itself. Tennessee kept $115,000 and split the rest with the Southeastern Conference. Texas won 36-13.

In the out-and-out charity games, the North-South in Miami returned about $65,000 to charity and the Shrine East-West game in San Francisco returned $250,000.

Limps In To Win Monte Carlo Rally

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Bjorn Waldegaard, 25-year-old Swedish champion, limped home to the finish of the Monte Carlo rally today to take first place on unofficial returns and give Porsche its second straight victory.

Waldegaard and Swedish co-driver Lars Helmer were given a great welcome as they crossed the line.

They had driven 3,500 miles from their Warsaw start.

Official confirmation of their victory could not be expected for some hours because it had to await checking of the car.

But they had a clear and apparently unsurmountable lead.

Jean Vinatier of France, in an Alpine, was unofficially placed second and his compatriot, Gerard Larrousse, in a Porsche, was third.

Jean Francoispiot, in a Ford, placed fourth according to unofficial standings and ;ave France three drivers in the top four.

JuCo Team Hits Road For Games

State Fair Community College's Roadrunners face two tough consecutive road games this weekend, the first against Washburn's junior varsity in Topeka tonight, and then St. Paul's Junior College at Concordia at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Roadrunners take a 9-2 season record into the two contests, and since they'll be playing in foreign territory, both contests could be a tough test of Roadrunner endurance.

The first time SFCC met St. Paul's was in Sedalia, and the Roadrunners took a 58-57 squeaker in a fast-paced contest that was full of surprises and excitement.

According to coach Fred Wehking, SFCC received notification this week that it was still ranked number one in defense for junior colleges of comparable size in the U.S.

Drake Is Still Hot On Heels of the Leader

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Drake is still hot on the heels of Missouri Valley Conference basketball leader Tulsa, thanks to Willie Wise and some rugged rebounding power, bqt the going starts getting tougher for the Bulldogs.

Wise powered a second-half surge that carried Drake to a 93-76 victory over Bradley Thursday night at Des Moines. That gave the Bulldogs a 5-1 MVC record, one game behind Tulsa's perfect 5-0 mark.

It was the only game involving Missouri Valley teams, but the action picks up considerably Saturday when Drake invades Louisville (4-2) in the regionally-televised afternoon game, and North Texas State (3-0) is at Wichita (1-4), Bradley (2-3; at St. Louis (2-4) and Memphis State (0-6) at Cincinnati (2-3) at night. Tulsa goes to Southern Illinois for a non-conference test.

Wise finished with 25 points for Drake Thursday night, making the first 10 the Bulldogs got at the start of the second half when they were widening a 40-34 halftime bulge.

Drake could hit only 30 per cent of its shots in the first half but a 39-17 rebounding advantage the opening 20 minutes kept Bradley from doing anything about it.

Makes Top In Individual Scoring Race

NEW YORK (AP) — In his fourth season and after 94 games, Jonnie Allen of Bethune-Cookman has finally made it to the top of the individual scoring leaders in the NCAA's College Division.

This week's rankings by National Collegiate Sports Services show Allen with 250 points in seven games, a 35.7 average. The Wildcats didn't start their season until mid-December.

Allen, a 6-foot-7 senior, displaced the season-long leader, 5-9 John Rinka of Kenyon, who dropped to third at 34.1, behind Ken Hall of Westminster, Utah, at 34.5.

Last year, Allen was the runner-up at midseason, finishing fifth with a 32.1 average. He averaged 27.1 as a freshman and 22.8 as a sophomore and ranks No. 8 on the all-time College Division career scoring list with 2,642 points in his 94 games.

The weekly statistics had a new leader in every category. Frank Zinke of Belmont Abbey replaced Marvin Lewis of Southampton as the field goal percentage leader at 73.1 per cent. Lewis, howdver, took over the rebounding lead from Vernon Walker of North Carolina A&T with 21.5 per game.

The top foul shooter at 91 per cent is Jack Gebler of St. Norbert, ousting Marvin Schmitt of Western New Mexico.

Washing Suggestions For Cotton Knit Shirts

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. S. J. T. wanted to know if there was a secret to successfully washing and drying children's cotton knit shirts. My method is no secret but it keeps the shirts in my household neat and trim. I turn the shirt wrong side out and get the bottom edges, side seams and shoulder seams even. I then lap it over the line about two inches from the bottom of the shirt. Pin it with three clothespins, one at each side seam and one in the center. When dry the shirt is neat and smooth and requires no ironing. I have had 22 years of neat-looking shirts with no twists or crooked edges.—TESSIE

DEAR GIRLS—Some of those "in the know" suggest shaping these shirts while they are damp. Let them dry on a flat surface.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I believe Mrs. S. J. T.'s trouble with washing cotton knit shirts is due to inferior material and workmanship and not her washing method. Try a better quality shirt and one with a label guaranteeing shape retention. They cost a little more but are well worth the cost. They maintain their good looks through scores of washings.—MRS. K. R. W.

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Mrs. S. J. T. that she should wash her child's cotton knit shirts in cold water with cold water detergent. Don't wring them out. Hang on a child's plastic coat hanger to dry.—DIANE

DEAR POLLY—To help washable tennis shoes wear longer I put them in a cotton cloth bag—a flour sack or such—when running them through the washing machine. The good part of a shirt tail also would make such a bag. The friction is then on the bag and not on the shoes.—V. M.

DEAR POLLY—To save time in searching for an empty coat hanger, I put the hanger from which a garment is removed at the end of the clothes bar.—ROSALINE

Pros Finish Rounds In Crosby Play

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Suppose for a moment that you are a 26-year-old professional golfer who has never finished a tournament higher than a tie for 20th place. Last year, you earned a grand total of $3,537.53.

You are now in the first round of one of the richest tournaments on the tour and you finish with a 70, two strokes under par and in a three-way tie for the lead with Billy Casper, who last year made more than $200,000 and rookie pro Mac McLendon.

But just after you finish your 18 holes at the Pebble Beach course, the first round is cancelled because of heavy rains. Everybody's score is wiped out and you have to start all over.

Are you angry? Do you curse the weather that played such a dirty trick on you? Not if you're Harry Toscano because you figure you had it coming.

It all happened to Toscano in what was to be the opening round of the $150,000 Bing Crosby Golf Tournament Thursday. No fewer than 96 pros had finished their rounds and 72 were on the course, most of them almost through, when the Professional Golfers Association canceled the round. The tournament will now run through Monday at least.

Two years ago, it rained at another Crosby and Toscano was standing at the 18th tee. It had taken him 102 strokes to get that far and he promptly hit his tee shot out of bounds.

"It would have taken at least 110 strokes," Toscano remembers. "I won't forget it if I live to be 150. It was raining so hard I was almost blind."

But that round, too, was wiped out and Toscano figures that maybe this was evening up the score. But he said he was playing pretty well Thursday, especially on the key holes, and should be able to do it again.

Casper was philosophical also. He was two-over-par for a time but was unworried.

"When you get to be old, you learn you'll pick up a couple of birdies along the way so you just keep playing your game."

What are the chances the tournament will be finished Monday? Not great. Rain is supposed to diminish today but more is forecast for Saturday. ABC now plans to televise the final three rounds.

Bad Night For Home Cage Teams

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a bad night for home teams in Missouri and Kansas collegiate basketball Thursday night, with the home court advantage helping only Central Methodist.

Central defeated Missouri Southern, 68-60, at Fayette, Mo.

Elsewhere, Missouri-Rolla lost at home to Pittsburg State, 78-62; St. Benedict's bowed on its home floor to Tennessee State, 65-61, and Tarkio succumbed to Pershing, Neb., College, 68-55, at Tarkio.

All were non-conference affairs.

The schedule remains light tonight, with the only league action in the Kansas Collegiate Athletic Conference where Ottawa travels to College of Emporia.

Southern Colorado is at Washburn University, Wichita Sacred Heart at Pershing and St. Mary of the Plains at Midwestern of Iowa in non-league affairs.

Central Methodist forged a 40-36 halftime lead and kept the upper hand the rest of the way to beat Missouri Southern. Randy Hubbard had 24 for the winners and Bill Cole 17 for the losers.

Bill Feuerborn scored 24 points and Louis Dunn grabbed 21 rebounds to pace Pittsburg past Rolla. Top for Rolla were Wayne Lewis and Don Morford with 10 each.

St. Benedict's hadn't lost at home for a month, but Tennessee State tripped the Ravens by building a 41-32 halftime lead and holding on. Chick Downing of St. Benedict's topped the scorers with 25.

Tarkio trailed only 61-55 with 39 seconds to go, then gave up seven points to sink to a 13-point loss before Pershing. Bill Slaughter got 17 for Tarkio.

Sellout Crowd To Watch Jo Jo

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—A sellout throng of 17,000 fans will be on hand a week from Saturday night to watch Jo Jo White play his final basketball game for the University of Kansas.

The university announced Thursday that the game against Colorado is sold out. White's eligibility expires at the end of this semester.

Try to Cut Down Hazard On Course

OLDHAM, England (AP) — Members of Brookdale Golf Club agreed today that the rotter who tried to saw down the sycamore in the middle of the fairway was a golfing rabbit determined at all costs to cut his handicap.

The 100-year-old tree, standing 30 feet high, catches anything but a solid drive from the tee at Brookdale's 545-yard fourth hole. Frustrated golfers call it the Brookdale Folly.

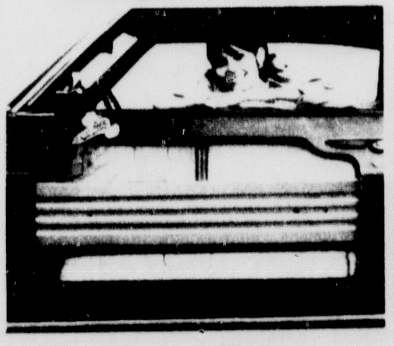
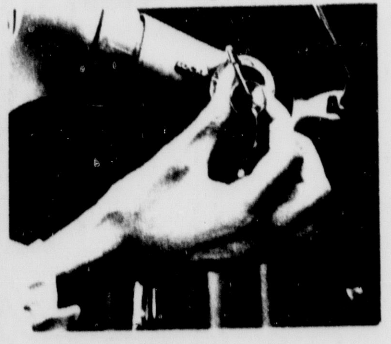
A slowdown.

Nobody can match us.



Side guard beams.

Double fenders.



Three-way lock.

Besides those, here's more of what nobody can match: Pushbutton headlight washers. Pushbutton trunk opener. Pushbutton traction system for going on ice.

Only Chevrolet makes them available. The other '69s think they're something out of the future.

The only thing out of the past is our prices. At least compared to the others. And that's what our Showdown is all about: showing up the competition.

And what a show it is. You've got to see it.

Lightweight Art

Striking a pretentious Atlas posture in unneeded support of an outsized black box, this girl adds the maximum touch to a peace of "minimal art" by Ronald Bladen of New York, shown at the "Minimal Arts" exhibition in Duesseldorf, Germany. High Standards Sought For Johnson Institution

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The goal of the Lyndon Baines Johnson School of Public Affairs is "a generally responsible education for persons entering all phases of public service."

That's the description by Dr. William S. Livingston, who has been immersed in the massive problems facing the developer of a new institution for a year. The school opens in early 1970 at the University of Texas.

For all his work, Livingston has not found a dean to head the school and he says his views are just that—his own personal views.

The school should not be open to just any graduate, Livingston declared in an interview.

"I think the admission requirements should be very high right from the start," he said. "We should work to have a first-rank institution from the outset."

What will be former President Johnson's role?

He has made no firm statement on his teaching aims at the school. But Livingston is optimistic about the amount of time Johnson will spend in the classrooms.

Johnson has said he will not be a professor in the full sense of the word.

"He doesn't plan to get up and meet a class at 8 o'clock every morning," said Livingston.

The goal of all this, says Livingston, will be "a generally responsible education for persons entering all phases of public service," though "not merely to produce more civil service people."

Livingston is quick to point out that the school is not the first of its kind. But he says that too many others have become narrow in their approach to producing a well-rounded student of public service.

"We don't want to confine ourselves to any single area of public affairs," says Livingston, chairman of the University of Texas government department. The school, he says, will attempt to train the student for entry into all public life, ranging from the grass-roots precinct to the national parties.

Livingston sees the presidential school as a two-year, masters degree-level program.

The first year will have a basic "core group" of courses in such matters as administration, political processes and government service.

The student will spend his second year in individual study and specialization.

Want Some Planes Retained for Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Before he left office, former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford ordered major changes in earlier plans by his predecessor, Robert S. McNamara, to phase out hundreds of nuclear bombers.

Under the revisions ordered by Clifford, who left office Monday with the rest of the Johnson administration, the Air Force will:

—Retain the 80 B58 Hustler supersonic strategic bombers which McNamara ticketed for mothballs beginning in mid-1970.

—Keep for a few years longer three older B52 squadrons, over 45 planes in all, part of 210 early B52 C through F models which McNamara planned to sideline completely by mid-1973.

—Cut approved production of the incoming swing-wing FB111 nuclear bombers from 210 to around 120. The FB111 is an offshoot of McNamara's controversial TFX design.

Pentagon sources say Gen. John P. McConnell, Air Force chief of staff, will make a case before new Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird for retaining a dozen or so other older B52 bomber squadrons that are destined for oblivion under the old McNamara policy.

The revisions are being greeted as good news by Air Force bomber advocates who have contended the McNamara regime was basing too much of the nation's security on unmanned long-range missiles.

The Air Force once had over 600 intercontinental range strategic bombers but is now down to 445. Hundreds of B47 medium bombers also were phased out early in the McNamara years.

"This is a victory, however minor," one Air Force officer who is familiar with the strategic bomber program, commented. "We've got our foot in the door."

In arguing for retention of the B52, Air Force officials maintained that the older C through F models should be held as a reserve conventional bombing capability for other Vietnam-type wars in the future.

The slash in planned FB111 production represents further erosion of the McNamara plan to turn out one basic plane design which could meet the needs of the services.

The Navy carrier-based counterpart, the F111B, was junked months ago because of soaring technical and cost productions. Orders for the Air Force's fighter version, the $7 million F111A, are being "stretched out" to ease a financial burden.

The B52s, developed in the 1950s, are being modified at a cost of billions of dollars to keep them flying into the late 1970s and are being equipped with advanced missiles and electronics for penetrating Soviet air defenses.

The exact "mix" of strategic bombers for the United States over the next few years is not clear, mainly because the Air Force for security reasons will not announce squadron phase-outs far in the future and withholds production rates for the new FB111.

New Urban Affairs Council Established

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon assembled his new Urban Affairs Council today to discuss the crises in America's cities and as the first order of business signed an executive order creating the panel.

Nixon used a succession of pens during the ceremony and joked about the difficulty of signing his name one small stroke at a time. The pens will be distributed as mementoes.

"My name is not long enough," Nixon said. "This is a first for me. This is going to be the most illegible signature. I'm a scrawler."

Membersof the eight-man council, which includes half of the Cabinet, stood behind Nixon as the President, seated at the Cabinet table, signed the order.

Nixon envisions that panel as the domestic counterpart of the National Security Council planning and implementing efforts to deal with big city problems.

Its first session, presumably was set up as largely procedural, for the naming of staff members to conduct its day-to-day work, including sociologist Daniel P. Moynihan, assistant to the President for urban affairs.

Atty, Gen. John N. Mitchell, Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz, Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney, Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe, and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew also will be regular council members.

A Nixon meeting Wednesday with Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy produced a pledge that the new administration will contain "inherited inflationary pressures that are seriously distorting the economy and financial markets."

Kennedy said the Nixon administration will "try to get through this by taking just the steam out of the boiler, the high pressure," without disruptive economic measures which might hoist unemployment.

"We are all conscious of the risks of abrupt and blunt action that could bring unnecessary unemployment. We mean to avoid that," Kennedy said in a statement which bore Nixon's endorsement.

"But we are equally concious of the risks of not moving decisively, because inflation is undermining both the foundation of our prosperity at home and our balance of payments position."

Kennedy listed budget control, monetary policy and the 10 per cent income surtax as among the tools the new administration would use in the effort to stem inflation.

But he was less than optimistic about prospects for substantial reduction of the budget President Johnson sent Congress. He said he considers it "a very tight budget. My own view is that it's going to be very difficult to reduce expenditures substantially."

Both Mayo and Kennedy said the ultimate decision will depend on the size of the budget, the expense of the war in Vietnam, and the overall economic situation.

Kennedy read his prepared statement on inflation control after naming his two top depu-

Informal Meeting

President Nixon meets informally with Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy, left with back to camera, and Paul A. Volcker, under-secretary for monetary affairs, in his office at the White House. After the meeting, Kennedy announced he would begin working on "taking the steam out of" the nation's over-heated economy. (UPI)

Outline Mayor's Duties

By ED VAUGHAN
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Illness or absence for other valid reasons somewhat hampered the scheduled committee reports of the Home Rule Commission at its regular meeting Wednesday night. Only eight of 13 members were present.

Scheduled were reports by the mayor committee, composed of Jim Mathewson, chairman; George Dugan and Ted Brown, and the council committee, composed of George Dugan, Jr., chairman; Jim Mathewson and Ted Brown. The duplication of names on each committee stems from the large number of committees and the small number of commission members. The committees which overlap in various areas are working together.

Mathewson, secretary of the commission, and his secretary, were absent from the meeting and their detailed scheduled reports were not available.

Since the two committees were working together, Dugan gave an "off the cuff" report of the findings and conclusions of each committee.

Some of the items presently intended to be in the proposed charter as mayor's duties include: a term of four years, limited to two successive terms; would have a tie-breaking vote if necessary in council meetings but not the power of veto; must be a resident of Sedalia for five years prior to his election; would be elected by the people and will be paid $2,400 per year plus expenses approved by the council.

Councilmen would also be elected to four year terms, not

Ready to Consider Any Alternate Election Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Birch Bayh served notice today a subcommittee he heads will consider all alternatives to the present system of electing a president, but renewed his call for direct election by popular vote.

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, assistant Republican leader, proposed a constitutional amendment to do away with the office of presidential elector but to allocate electoral votes by congressional districts rather than states. Other alternatives to the Electoral College system are pending.

Bayh spoke out as his subcommittee on constitutional amendments reopened hearings on the various proposals—including Bayh's amendment for direct popular election of presidents.

Called as a leadoff witness by Subcommittee chairman Birch Bayh, D-Ind., were three senators, two of them advocates of direct popular election.

Tennessee's Howard H. Baker Jr. and Oklahoma's Henry Bellmon, both Republicans, are among more than 30 sponsors of a constitutional amendment that would abolish the electoral college and replace it with a direct election system.

The third witness, Republican Peter H. Dominick, of Colorado, supports elements of two rival plans, one providing for a division of electoral votes in proportion to the popular vote and the Scott proposal.

Scott told the Senate his proposal would improve the present system and "end this problem of the disenfranchised voter by doing away with the winner-take-all method."

"It will tend to strengthen the two-party system, the real bulwark of our government, by encouraging the minority party in currently one-party states," he added.

"More importantly, it will not enhance the chances of splinter parties because they have little hope of diverting more than a few electoral votes from one major party candidate," Scott said.

Under Scott's plan, a presidential ticket winning the plurality of a state's popular vote would win two electoral votes corresponding to the state's representation in the Senate.

The ticket also would win one additional electoral vote for each congressional district it carried by a plurality.

Juvenile Delinquency Rate Up

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Juvenile delinquency in Missouri increased by 17 per cent during 1967, according to Proctor N. Carter, state welfare director.

In a report issued today, welfare statitics show it was the fifth highest yearly increase on record.

Referrals for delinquent behavior other than traffic offenses increased to 20,697 from 17,691 in 1966. There were 9,722 referrals for traffic offenses, up from 8,334 for 1966 or an increase of 16.7 per cent.

In 1948 juvenile courts handled 4,786 cases. The figure for 1967 represents an increase of 332.4 per cent. During this same 20-year period the child population 10 to 16 years of age increased by about one-fourth.

The report shows delinquency is primarily an urban problem. Eleven counties in Missouri classified as metropolitan for statistical purposes contained 46 per cent of the child population 10 to 16 years of age. Yet, these same counties reported 17,063 non - traffic delinquency referrals in 1967—more than 80 per cent of all cases during the year.

St. Louis County reported the largest number of non-traffic referrals with 5,343, an increase of 26.5 per cent.

The city of St. Louis was next with 5,090, a decrease of 1.7 per cent from 1966.

Jackson County, including a part of Kansas City, referred 3,827—an increase of 12.3 per cent over 1966.

Types of delinqency varied with age and sex. Larceny accounted for the largest number of referrals for all age groups except the 15-year-olds, who got into trouble most often by running away.

Running away was also the most common offense among girls. Larceny accounted for most of the referrals involving boys of all age groups.

Places of detention varied widely between urban and rural areas. In urban counties specialized facilities were used in over 90 per cent of delinquency cases requiring overnight detention. In rural areas juveniles kept overnight were detained in jails in 77 per cent of all cases.

Introduce Over 250 New Bills

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's House of Representatives Wedneday topped the 250 mark in bills and constitutional amendments introduced since the start of the 75th General Assembly Jan. 8.

On adjournment Wednesday the House had received 242 bills and 22 constitutional amendments. One of the latest actions was adoption of a resolution creating a special committee to review complaints about Missouri's new motor vehicle inspection law. The Senate recently received a resolution seeking a 60-day moratorium on the law.

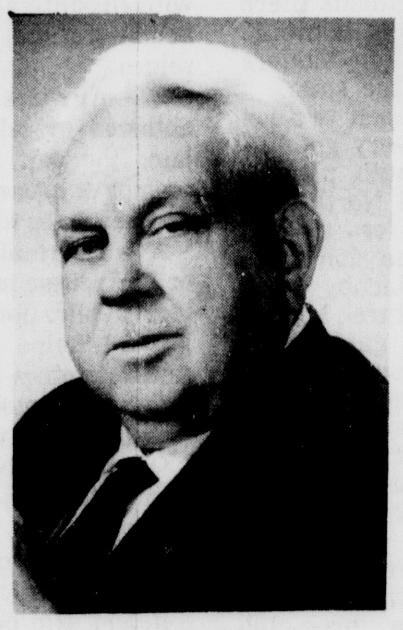
The House Committee will consist of seven members who are expected to submit a preliminary report within seven days. It will have 21 days to submit final recommendations.

The Senate Resolutions Committee plans to meet next Monday at 2 p.m. to study the moratirum proposal.

Another bill introduced Wednesday would make it a felony instead of a misdemeanor to continue an unlawful assembly after being warned. It also would make it a felony to incite a riot.

Popular Newspaper Editor Dies; Age 73

Stanton Hudson, 73, former editor and publisher of the Sedalia Times, died at 11:45 Wednesday night at Mercy Hospital, Fort Scott, Kan., where he had been a patient for two weeks receiving treatment for a heart condition.



Stanton Hudson

Hudson was born in Fort Scott, Aug. 17, 1895, son of District Judge Bannus Hudson and Mrs. Virginia Hudson. Following graduation from Fort Scott High school he served in the 35th Division, during World War I, and was in the battles of St. Mihiel, and the Musse-Argonne.

Returning to Fort Scott he was married to Frances Strong and was employed by the Borden Milk Co. He came to Sedalia in August, 1929, to work as a printer for the Hurlbut Printing Co.

In 1934, he went to Oklahoma and was employed by newspapers there before returning to Sedalia in 1936 to be associated with Dan M. Carr, Jr., in publication of the Sedalia Times. He became sole owner of the newspaper and commercial printing business in 1948.

The Times, located on West Second street, ceased publication in 1962 when Hudson retired. In 1963 he returned to Fort Scott.

While editor of the Times, Hudson established a reputation in Sedalia, and journalism circles in general, as a "crusading" newspaperman.

Perhaps the one incident for which Hudson will be remembered the longest

Sales Tax For Cities Is Proposed

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House got proposals today to give cities a local sales tax of up to a half cent on the dollar and to solve the highway problem by issuing road bonds.

The sales tax plan was offered by Rep. Thomas A. Walsh, D-St. Louis. It would permit cities of 10,000 or more to levy the tax which would be collected along with the state sales tax. The state then would return to the taxing cities the amount collected within their borders.

It was Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' recommendation as a local way to solve a local problem. Some city mayors, including Mayor A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis, have protested that a local sales tax would drive business out of their cities.

They want the state to levy a tax and share it with the cities.

Walsh said some legislators from rural areas already have asked that the population limit be lowered to 2,500 so their communities could take advantage of the local sales tax plan.

Suspect Pueblo Captain Of Violating Regulations

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — A Navy court told Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher Wednesday that he was suspected of violating naval regulations in surrendering the intelligence ship Pueblo to the North Koreans. He was informed by the five admirals constituting a court of inquiry that anything he said from now on might be used against him in court-martial proceedings.

But Bucher, obviously shaken by the statement, said he would continue to give "full details" of the Pueblo's capture and of the 11 months he and his 81 surviving crewmen spent in captivity.

Bucher resumes his testimony today—the first anniversary of the seizure of the ship by the North Koreans.

Wednesday Bucher, 41, described how he gave up the Pueblo with her guns still covered. The court recessed briefly after he told of "receiving" aboard a party of North Korean riflemen about 20 miles off Wonsan Harbor and how they prodded his crew to sitting positions on the deck.

After their return, his face tensed as he heard counsel for the Navy, Capt. William Newsome declare: "Commander Bucher it is my duty to tell you that facts revealed in this court of inquiry render you to be suspect of a violation of USNR Article 0730."

A court of inquiry is not a military trial, like a court-martial, but only an investigative hearing. Nevertheless Bucher's status suddenly had changed from "a party to the court" to "suspect." Shortly after the crew's release just before Christmas at least two Navy admirals had called Bucher and his men heroes.

With a Brooklyn twang, Newsome quoted regulations:

"The commanding officer shall not permit his command to be searched by any person representing a foreign state nor permit any person representing a foreign state nor permit any other personnel under his command to be removed from that command by such a person, so long as he has the power to resist."

Bucher's civilian attorney, E. Miles Harvey, immediately demanded, "Commander, at the time the North Koreans first set foot on your ship did you any longer have the power to resist?"

"No, I did not," Bucher answered.

"Commander Bucher remains fervent in his desire to tell this court the full details," Harvey said.

The Navy, through Wednesday, had raised these points against Bucher:

1. That he failed to comprehend fully the possibility of an attack. For example:

Q. Vice Admiral Harold G. Bowen Jr.: "Did you ever consider an attack and what you would do?"

A. Bucher: "No sir, I never considered I would ever be attacked on this mission. It never occurred to me. . .It never occurred to me nor did it cross my mind that I would ever be put in the position I found myself in that afternoon."

2. That his men weren't issued small arms.

Q. Bowen: "How about small arms for the men?"

A. Bucher: "Small arms were

At Least 28 People Killed by Tornadoes

HAZLEHURST, Miss. (AP) — Tornadoes ripped across central Mississippi early today, killing at least 28 persons and injuring more than 100.

The heaviest damage was reported at Hazlehurst, about 30 miles south of Jackson, where a twister cut a half-mile wide swath and left 10 persons dead and 15 to 20 homes demolished.

The Mississippi Highway Patrol said seven persons were killed by twisters in adjoining Simpson County between Mendenhall and Harrisville.

Police said a twister killed four persons in one house near White Oak, east of the Harrisville-Mendenhall area.

Hospitals at Hazlehurst and Mendenhall were reported filled and victims of the tornadoes were being sent to hospitals in Jackson.

The violent storm touched down a mile south of Hazlehurst at 6:25 a.m. CST and cut a destructive swath one mile long and one half mile wide.

The U.S. Weather Bureau issued a tornado warning for a large portion of central Mississippi and said a tornado was spotted in the Mendenhall-D'Lo area about 40 miles east-northeast of here.

Old Robbery Case Is Revived

By RALPH JONES
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

A 32-years-old robbery conviction in Pettis County has been revived in Circuit Court here.

Wednesday, a motion to vacate sentence under the provisions of State Supreme Court Rule 27.26 was filed by Ralph Gabriel in Circuit Court.

In the motion Gabriel maintains he was denied his constitutional rights during, and prior to, his trial.

Gabriel was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for robbing George Walz of $5 and a pocketbook valued at less than ten cents, by a Pettis County jury, on Jan. 27, 1937. The robbery allegedly occurred on Dec. 12, 1936.

Specifically, Gabriel maintains his constitutional rights were denied in that prior to the trial he was not advised of his rights, that he had no legal representation prior to his trial, that there was no arriagnment nor preliminary hearing, that no warrant had been served on him, that in his trial his attorneys were incompetent in that they did not advise him of his rights and they did not render proper legal support.

John Montgomery and John C. McCloskey were his court-appointed attorneys in the trial. Judge Dimmitt Hoffman was Circuit Judge then.

Under the Supreme Court Rule the court here may vacate the sentence, conduct a new trial or correct the sentence.

Procedures have changed somewhat since that trial in 1937. Then, Gabriel's two previous felony convictions were taken into consideration in setting the sentence, which was determined by the jury.

Now, the sentence of a man with previous convictions would be determined by the Court, not the jury. The jury would only determine the individual's guilt or innocence, and the sentence would be determined by the judge, under the Habitual Criminal Act, within the limits of current law.

In 1937 the jury was required to assess the maximum penalty for the offense, considering the previous convictions.

Demonstrate Positively . . .

Now that the inaugural festivities are concluded we can reflect upon the portrayal in Washington Monday night as the harmonious composite of a nationwide attitude of hopefulness for peaceful progress — the ushering in of an era of good feeling.

Such an era occurred during the administration of President James Monroe 150 years ago. Is there any reason why we should not have a repetition of it?

The Washington scene now reveals an atmosphere of self-confidence and assurance that collectively the nation is above being dominated by the so-called exponents of peace, those anti-war demonstrators who profess non-violence but who burnt souvenir American flags along the inaugural parade route, who shouted obscenities and threw rocks and beer cans at the President's limousine.

Such demonstrations accomplish nothing constructive. They only deserve the blighting contempt of God-fearing Americans whose respect for liberty is fatigued by the antics of the lunatic-fringe element whose inconsistencies are so evident.

People out here in the prairie lands of Central Missouri as elsewhere are irritated and weary of the periodic and pointless outbursts in so many cities by campus and other dissenters whose chief aim is disruption of university and college operations, or community harmony.

However, the disturbed people who indulge in these violent eruptions may be succeeding in a way they had not foreseen, according to a comment coming to our attention. In the last election, many bond issues and tax proposals having to do with education went down to defeat. In California, $250 million in bonds for construction of the state's troubled universities and colleges were turned down by the voters. Campus riots in Berkeley were given as one reason for the rejection. Tax increases to meet school needs were presumably defeated in many areas because of the actions of uncontrolled minority groups.

An inference is that voters resent the use of tax-supported educational institutions as a breeding ground for riots and violence; that slowing down of the flow of tax funds for education is part of the price that everyone must pay when permissiveness becomes anarchy.

Missourians have been fortunate in the scarcity of negative vehemence. Hopefully, our state's breed of citizenship has more intelligence than to impede educational progress. Voting against school progress as an expedient to express disapproval of violent student dissenters invites double jeopardy.

Certainly Sedalians find no need to resort to such countermeasures against disruption of a school system.

Instead our local community presently is confronted with a challenge to demonstrate positively for something practical — an endorsement at the polls Tuesday, February 4, of a $1,650,000 bond issue to build a Junior High school in Sedalia.

Russians Appear in Peace Mood

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon, who took the oath of office with his hand on Isaiah 2,4, proclaiming that nations should "beat their swords into plowshares," now faces tremendous opportunities and tremendous problems in achieving that goal.

As reported in an earlier column, Lyndon Johnson had taken important steps toward an early peace in Vietnam and a long range peace with Soviet Russia. He had even discussed with the Russians a peaceful formula for American resumption of relations with Communist Cuba, and received peace overtures from Moscow regarding the dynamite-laden Near East.

The outcome of all of these will depend largely on whether the new President is able to retain the long range cooperation of the other super nuclear power — Soviet Russia. Even peace in Vietnam will depend on how much Soviet Russia pressures Ho Chi Minh. During the Johnson administration, Russia is reported to have curtailed the shipment of missiles, and was sending agriculture experts to North Vietnam instead.

The big question, therefore is: How far can the new Quaker President go in carrying out the chief tenet of his faith — Peace; and how much will the Russians help him?

We have already reported that leaders of the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers), of which Nixon was born a member, were rebuffed when they sought to confer with him regarding the religious duties of his office. We already know that such Russian leaders as Khrushchev and Foreign Minister Gromyko were not happy with Nixon's views or conduct either when he was Vice President or before.

—Communist-Hunter—

In 1954 he had advocated landing American troops in what was then French Indo-China to rescue the French. And he had built up his political career on a campaign of Communist-hunting. Even before Sen. Joe McCarthy had climbed to fame on his false accusation of 205 card-carrying Communists in the State Department, Nixon had started seeing Communists under beds in California, especially the beds of those who were running against him.

His greatest victory, which probably led to his choice as Eisenhower's Vice President, was the now dubious charge that Alger Hiss was a Communist. None of this endeared him to the world's most potent Communist nation, Soviet Russia, with which he will now have to do business in order to keep the peace.

So the big question is: Will the Communist world do business with Nixon?

The answer, in my opinion, is that it will.

I base this partly on a trip to the Communist countries of Eastern Europe last September, partly on a study of the Russian press.

While visiting the neighbors of Czechoslovakia last fall, the main questions asked of me by Communist leaders were: first, who will win the American election; and, second, is there a new Nixon, or does the old Nixon still lurk beneath the surface?

Their general conclusion, upon being told that Richard Nixon probably would be the next President, was that they could work with him. Nicolae Ceausescu, top leader of Romania, had had a two-hour talk with Nixon last year, had concluded that Nixon was a practical man, that he wanted peace.

Foreign Minister Josef Winiewicz of Poland had been Polish Ambassador in Washington when Nixon, a young member of the House un-American Activities Committee had come to see him while investigating Communism. The Polish Foreign Minister, himself a leading Communist, smiled at this. But he too thought Nixon had grown up, had become practical, and that the Communist world could work with him for peace.

—Silent Soviet Press—

Meanwhile the Communist press is significantly silent about President Nixon. In contrast to the West European press which has been more critical than American Democratic newspapers, the Russian press has been noncommittal. Since this is a government-controlled press, it means that the Soviet Union is waiting to give Nixon a chance.

If he pushes ratification of the treaty to stop the spread of nuclear weapons it will be a sign that the new President wants to cooperate. If he also accepts the Russian overtures for discussions of peace in the Near East, it will be a further sign.

Both are important, for there are mixed views in the Kremlin over Nixon. Spartak Beglov, leading Soviet foreign affairs commentator, has written a column stating that he differed with Russians who were critical of Henry Kissinger's appointment as Nixon's No. 1 foreign affairs adviser. This is an unusual public admission of private disagreement in Moscow.

That disagreement is reported to involve the same disagreement which existed during Khrushchev's era, and which also exists between the State Department and the Pentagon. It's the disagreement between the big missile men and the peace men, between the preventive-war advocates and those who argue that nuclear war would bring the end of civilization.

The Red Army has always carried weight in the Kremlin, just as the Joint Chiefs of Staff carried weight with Kennedy and Johnson. Nixon's past record indicates they will also carry weight with him.

The new Secretary of State, William P. Rogers, though inexperienced in diplomacy, is a level-headed, practical man. His word is likely to prevail with the new President. If so, Mr. Nixon will take advantage of the Russian invitation to sit down at the negotiating table and fulfill his pledge of "seeking the highest honor history can bestow" — the title of Peacemaker.

LBJ's 'Good-Guy' Budget Full of Traps for Nixon

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

A study of President Johnson's final budget brings a number of peculiarities to light.

In several ways the document seems calculated to saddle Mr. Nixon with Johnson policies. Other items seem set up to trap the new president politically.

The main thrust, however, seems aimed at making Johnson show up well historically in a budget he will not be required to live with. Take the matter of spending.

The Congress approved the Johnson surtax on the understanding that Johnson would cut expenditures. Johnson was expected to shelve some $6 billion in new contracts. But Congress left a loophole. It called for expenditure cuts but forgot to specify an equivalent reduction in the awarding of contracts.

Johnson has taken advantage of this loophole. His administration didn't obligate the shelved funds so long as the expenditure would fall during the Johnson term of office. But in the weeks before the Nixon take-over, the Johnson men were heavily placing new obligations—that is, letting new contracts that will come up for payment in Nixon's term.

This tactic kept spending low in Johnson's last year, but forces these heavier expenditures on the Nixon administration. By obligating the funds, Johnson forces an extension of his policies on Nixon. It is very difficult and expensive—in money and political effect—to withdraw contracts once let.

Johnson apparently has set two further traps for Nixon.

He has presented neatly balanced budgets with a surplus of $2.4 billion for fiscal 1969 and a surplus of $3.4 billion for fiscal 1970.

But in achieving these paper balances in the black, Johnson has greatly underestimated the cost of:

- The Vietnam war.
- Research and development required to carry out budget programs.
- Replenishing military arms and supplies now at a dangerously low level as the result of the fighting in Southeast Asia.
- Buildings, equipment and supplies for a wide variety of programs throughout the government.

These hidden underestimates seem designed to require Nixon to come back for more funds. They seem aimed at insuring Nixon will end up in the red, though Johnson presented him with a budget "in the black."

Watch the news for major supplementals before June 30.

The third trap Johnson has set for Nixon is in the heavily expanded "social" programs.

The Johnson budget for 1970 funnels money rapidly into a number of young, untested programs.

The experience in foreign aid, education aid and the war on poverty is that when huge amounts of money are quickly poured into unproven new programs, the inevitable result has been waste, corruption, graft, inefficiency. Current exposures of financial irregularities in New York City's poverty program are an example. Often a great deal of harm is done to the intended recipients.

This has been so in programs where the objectives were clear and the basic concepts sound. It has been even more true when the government has moved into fields in which experience was limited or objectives vague.

Yet, once in a budget proffered to Congress, it will be difficult politically for Nixon to slash away at unrealistic funding proposals. He will be accused of being insensitive to the needs of the poor, minorities and young people. Alternately, if he goes ahead at the pace outlined in Johnson's budget, the new President will leave himself open to charges of waste, bungling and mismanagement.

We imagine quite a few North American pairs reached a spade slam with today's North-South cards in in the Charity tourney. Some North players might open one spade and proceed to six after a raise from partner.

Played from the North seat the slam is not too bad a contract. The location of the king of hearts doesn't matter because South can probably get rid of his queen of hearts on dummy's fourth diamond but since East held the queen of diamonds there is no way to bring home 12 tricks and the slam bidders will wind up in the soup.

North should open two no-trump with his very good 21 points. Some South players will pass and let North play two no-trump for a bad score. Those who don't use Stayman or the Jacoby transfer will respond three spades and will play at game after a raise from North. A diamond lead will hold them to four odd because the defense will take the first three tricks but most will make an overtrick after the normal club opening lead.

Stayman bidders will reach four spades with North as declarer after a three-club Stayman bid by South and three spade response by North.

The Jacoby Transfer bidders will also arrive at four spades with North as declarer. South will respond three hearts to the opening two no-trump bid. This bid shows spades and a hand of any strength from nothing on up.

North's normal reply to the three-heart transfer is a three-spade bid but this particular hand calls for stronger action. North should jump right to four spades to show that his two no-trump opening includes very good spades. Give South a slightly better hand and he will move toward a slam but with this holding South will pass contentedly.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What was the real name of Mata Hari, the famous spy of World War I?

A—Gertrud Margarete Zelle. The Dutch-born spy, an agent for the German government, adopted the name of "Mata Hari," meaning "Eye of the Morning," in Java some years before the war.

Q—Does a tree benefit in any special way by its fall colors?

A—No. Fall colors are considered to be an incidental chemical reaction of no importance in the life of a tree.

The report that some automobiles will soon have computers in the glove compartment is good news for the safety-conscious. One manufacturer's ads, burbling about electronic checkups before the car gets off the assembly line, is worthy of the front page. Research on car crashes is really headline stuff. But, while I am waiting for more scientific marvels, I wonder if they could do something about the flying objects inside my car?

Not loose articles—I can manage those. It's the hurtling accessories I'd like them to work on. The dome light that keeps falling on my head, for example. And, the rear view mirror that drops off.

I didn't mind when the arm rest fell off because I don't want anyone leaning on the door. Also, I didn't care so much when the bolts fell off both the sun visors. However, I can't say that I like the lining of the car flapping on my shoulder.

Now, manufacturers, in case you think I am a crank (and, by the way, I could use one of THOSE because of the ignition trouble) may I say I am not the only one who is complaining.

Of course, my back window hasn't fallen out as did the one in my friend's new car. And, my windshield wipers are terrific. Actually, her wipers were great. They worked so hard she couldn't get them to turn off, so finally she just drove down to the garage. It wasn't an extra trip or anything—she had to go down anyway and have the emergency brake replaced as it had fallen into the floor.

Then another friend of mine had to have four new tires after driving only 5,000 miles. We didn't have to do that on our car. Instead, we had the front end realigned two times.

I don't know how to build a car, so I can't offer constructive suggestions. Giving credit where it is due, I must say I think they have made tremendous strides in built-in obsolescence. After all, I'll bet it isn't easy to construct a $4,000 automobile so it will fall apart in a year.

And, because they can't engineer a 10-cent bolt that will successfully hold up my mirror doesn't mean they can't build a computer. But, even with all my faith in them, I think when I next buy a car I'll just ask them to please hold the computer. What I'd rather have is a tool box.

Varicose Veins Are Not Hereditary

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — What symptoms do varicose veins cause? Are they hereditary?

A — Uncomplicated varicosities usually cause no discomfort. In far-advanced cases there may be mild aching pains in the legs, easy fatigability and a feeling of heaviness around the ankles. Varicose veins are not hereditary but are caused by long periods of standing in one place. They often follow pregnancy and childbirth.

Q — I am 23 and have varicose veins. Can there be any complications? Is there any complete cure?

A — The usual complications are chronic leg ulcers and inflammations of the veins (phlebitis). Surgical removal of the veins or injecting them with an obliterating agent will cure them, but if the conditions that caused them persist they may return.

Q — At times bathers in the Gulf of Mexico are bothered by jellyfish. Pinpoint welts occur and later the gait becomes unsteady and one gets cramps or nausea. Is there anything the victim can do when stung to minimize the poisonous effects?

A — The results of stings by jellyfish, sea nettles or Portuguese men-of-war can be serious. Prompt local application of ammonia, alcohol or calamine lotion helps to neutralize the poison. Antihistamines will reduce the severity of the delayed symptoms. Drugs of the cortisone group have been tried with varying success.

Q — I have liver spots on my face. I know some women have them when they are pregnant but I never had them then. What causes them? What can be done for them? Are they contagious?

A — Liver spot is a vague term that is applied to different skin conditions including chloasma (the mask of pregnancy) and morphea (a skin manifestation of scleroderma), but most commonly it is applied to tinea versicolor. This is a mild fungus infection which most victims ignore because it causes no discomfort unless the spots are on the face and are considered unsightly.

Pragmatar ointment or a lotion that contains sulfur and resorcin should help you. A new prescription preparation, Tinver Lotion, has worked well on some victims. The disease is not contagious.

First Family Grooming

Good grooming for the new presidential family is being considered seriously. Pat Nixon is going to have a beauty shop in the White House for herself, her daughters and the women who work there. This makes sense. Her predecessors had to go to their favorite hairdresser's shop or have her come to the White House. This was inconvenient to both.

Mrs. Nixon may be able to persuade her New York hairdresser to come to the White House, but Eva Ruiny has a fashionable clientele there and may not want to forego such a profitable following even for the sake of the White House prestige. No matter who will serve the First Lady, having a beauty shop in the building will prove to be a great time saver for those who live and work there and even for guests who wish to use it.

The President-elect also has tonsorial problems. He pays five dollars and adds a two dollar tip to Parcisio Buhagiar, his New York barber. He shampoos his own hair which is silky and curly. The barber, a Maltese immigrant, says he will be glad to be the President's personal barber in the White House, but if he goes in for "hippie hair styles and sideburns he will have to get a new barber." So far Parcisio Buhagiar has not been invited to serve in the White House.

No one knows how the beauty shop will be financed, but if Congress can provide the funds for keeping the women beautiful on the Hill, surely it can provide one for the ladies in the White House.

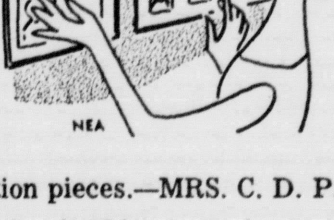
POLLY'S POINTERS

Put Multiple Pictures In a Big Single Frame

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—If Mrs. R. D. B. wants to hang framed pictures of her children, she can mount a panel of perforated hard board, paint it the same color as the wall and hang all the school pictures on the little hooks that are for inserting in the holes.

To hang unframed pictures, she could tack a length of hopsacking to a one-inch lath, attach picture wire or a pretty cord to each end of the lath and hang. Pictures could be mounted on this with gold, silver or colored plastic adhesive-backed tape, outlining each picture like a frame. Youngsters seem to love this.—MRS. C. P.



DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Mrs. R. D. B. that I have three children, so I took three large picture frames, put a typed poem called "What Is a Boy?" in the middle of the one for my son, leaving enough room for pictures to go all around the poem. The girls' frames have a poem called "What Is a Girl?" I have these hanging in a hallway where they are real conversation pieces.—MRS. C. D. P.

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. R. D. B. should get one large picture frame for all of each child's pictures. The size will depend on the number of pictures she thinks she will want in it. My only child, a daughter, is now a nun and I had pictures of her all over the living room so that it looked like a picture gallery. They started when she was a baby and went through school, beauty contests, various stages in her religious order until obtaining her nun's habit. You can imagine what the pictures looked like. A priest came to call and, when he saw them, asked if he could make a suggestion. He said, "Take all those pictures out of the frames, get one large one and put them all in it." I did and it is beautiful. My living room is no longer cluttered as 11 of my favorite photographs are in one frame, with space left for some more.—MRS. R. K.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have charge of fund raising for our high school girls' organization. I do hope some other students will give us some ideas about how they make money. Thank you very much.—BETTY

DEAR POLLY—I have found that wash-and-wear slacks retain their color longer if turned to the wrong side before washing. I do this with all my boys' pants and the blue jeans certainly stay blue longer.—GLADYS.

Schools Are Ordered Closed After Strike

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)— Dr. Robert Coyle, school superintendent, ordered the closing of all schools in the city today because of a teachers' strike, the second in two years over salaries.

He cited two reasons for closing the city's 30 elementary and four high schools:

—Concern for the safety of the pupils.

—State law requires all schools to run 180 days of the year, and it would create an imbalance to keep only some of them open.

Jersey City, with a population of about 275,000, is just across the Hudson River from New York City. About 35,000 students attend the city's public schools, which have a teaching staff of 1,650. About 75 per cent of the teachers were reported on strike

Negotiations between the Jersey City Education Association, representing the teachers, and the board were set for later today.

The teachers are seeking a yearly salary range of $8,000 to $12,800, compared to the present $6,200 to $9,750. The board has offered a $6,500 starting salary, with a top scale of $10,200.

breaking vote if necessary in council meetings but not the power of veto; must be a resident of Sedalia for five years prior to his election; would be elected by the people and will be paid $2,400 per year plus expenses approved by the council.

Councilmen would also be elected to four year terms, not to succeed themselves more than once.

Candidates for the city council would run without political designation and one councilman would be elected from each ward, with four to be elected at large. Dugan explained that this would enable the best man in each ward to be elected by the people of that ward and would not keep a man from running just because another is running specifically for that ward.

Councilmen would be paid $25 per authorized meeting attended plus expenses.

The council committee also drew up 39 powers which would be delegated to the council for the efficient running of their office. They cover regulation of taxes and rates and municipal utilities and services.

Mayor George Nicklaus of Columbia and Dr. John Hane, political science instructor at Central Missouri State College, addressed the commission at its invitation, and discussed some of the problems the commission will have to deal with in its decision on a form of government. No final decision on the type of government to be presented to the voters has been made, the commission reported.

Reports from the fire and police, finance, law, public works and public health and welfare committees are scheduled for the next Home Rule Commission meeting to be held Feb. 12. The public is invited to attend all regular commission meetings.

Hickel Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alaska Gov. Walter J. Hickel won delayed confirmation from the Senate Thursday after extensive senatorial criticism of his appointment as secretary of the interior in the Nixon administration.

And senators approved also the appointment of California industrialist David R. Packard as deputy secretary of defense, rejecting a protest about his financial holdings.

The two nominations are the only ones by President Nixon that have stirred any substantial challenge.

Hickel was confirmed by a vote of 73 to 16, with all opposition from Democrats.

Several Democrats who voted for him said they did so with reservations but in support of the tradition a new president is entitled to have the Cabinet officers he wants.

All the other 11 new Cabinet members were confirmed unanimously in rapid-fire order immediately after Nixon was inaugurated Monday. They took office Wednesday.

CHICAGO (AP) — A technical reaction to declining prices in recent days, accompanied by a late rally, sent major commodity futures ahead by more than 1 cent a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday.

Trade was rather light and volume appeared to have been lower than in recent days.

The principal factor in the advance of wheat futures was some optimism in the trade concerning the strike of longshoremen on the East and Gulf coasts, now in its fifth week. Despite the absence of definite news on progress of negotiations, the trade viewed some reports as constructive and turned to buying wheat.

At the close, heat was ⅞ to 1⅜ cents a bushel higher, March 1.34⅜; corn was ¼ to ½ higher, March 1.17⅜; oats were ¾ to 1⅜ higher, March 73¾ cents: rye was 1⅛ to 1¾ higher, March [illegible] ⅛.¼¼¾; and soybeans were ½ to 1⅜ higher, March 2.64.

Five Flood Victims Located

OJAI, Calif. (AP) — Along the debris-choked banks of Sespe Creek, the clearing sky disclosed a young boy's body . . . then the bodies of two more . . . then the lifeless forms of a sheriff's deputy and a forest ranger.

It was feared five more would be found dead today.

These were the lost party of six young hikers, their adult leaders and three men who tried trafically to rescue them from the rain-flooded area.

A survivor of the group, Scott Eckersley, 28, told authorities that he was washed ashore after a bulldozer stalled as they had attempted to cross the swift stream late Monday.

Elsewhere, as skies dried over California, heavy property and crop damage was counted. Southern California's storm damage was estimated at $3 million.

There were 47 storm-related deaths.

The storm turbulence was blamed for light plane crash in which three Texans died on a mountainside near Banning.

At least 29 traffic deaths in southern California were caused by the storm, authorities said.

In the foothills of Angeles National Forest, northeast of Los Angeles, 15 homes were destroyed by floods and rockslides in the Azusa-Glendora area.

More than 90 other homes were damaged as overnight floodwaters from mountains denuded by a 19,000-acre brush fire last year sent muck and boulders crashing through a housing tract. Several were filled with mud six feet deep. Fifteen homes were evacuated.
